FRANK ASKED ROOM TO CONCEAL BODY BELIEVES LANFORD

Detective Chief Forms New Theory as to Reason Why Prisoner Is Said to Have Phoned Mrs. Formby.

HER DISAPPEARANCE PUZZLING TO OFFICERS

Lanford Says He Will Find Her in Time for Trial, But Does Not Know Where She Is Now.

That Leo M. Frank telephoned Mrs. Formby on the night of Mary Phagan's murder for a room to which he would be able to remove the victim's body and thereby lessen suspicion against himself, is the theory on which Chief Newport Lanford is basing a search for Mrs. Formby, which is extending over the entire south.

She mysteriously disappeared several days ago. Efforts to locate her have been futile. The entire detective department is puzzled. The Pinkertons are mystified. Her whereabouts is a matter that interests detectives and the Pinkertons.

Mrs. Formby, in a recent interview to a reporter for The Constitution, told him that she had been made several offers of money to leave Atlanta until the Mary Phagan trial had been completed. She also openly announced that within a short while she intended leaving the city for New Mexico, in which state she said she intended to live.

Chief Determined to Find Her.

Chief Lanford says, however, that he will produce her at the trial of Leo M. Frank, and that she will be an important witness. He admits, though, even with this announcement, that he has not yet been able to find her.

"We were able to find the girl's murderer," says the chief, "and surely we will be able to locate Mrs. Formby."

His theory is that the suspected superintendent, after deliberating over the crime the chief accuses him of having committed, communicated over the telephone with Mrs. Formby to obtain a room to which he could remove the body, thereby lessening the suspicion which would likely cling to himself if the corpse remained in the factory basement.

Carried Notes to Basement.

Chief Lanford's theory is that the superintendent, after Conley had departed from the pencil plant, carried the notes to the basement, where the body had been placed. The staple was wrenched from the back door so that in case a cab or other conveyance which might drive up the runway in rear of the building could back up to the door to receive its ghastly freight.

He believes that Frank, when he discovered he could not obtain a room at Mrs. Formby's, the only woman he could trust, dared not communicate with any other place, so he went to his home, leaving the body in the basement.

That is the chief's theory as outlined to a reporter for The Constitution Sunday afternoon. It will be remembered that Conley, in his confession to having helped the superintendent remove the body to the cellar, declared he did

21 CENTS WILL PUT A 3-LINE WANT AD BEFORE THOUSANDS OF INTELLIGENT PEOPLE

They will be readers of the Woman's Edition. Your want ad in the Special Classified Section of that edition will cost you 1 cent a word or 7 cents a line. This is an unusually generous rate for the quantity and quality of the circulation offered. Interest in the Woman's Edition is running high and circulation advances every day.

The informative and educational nature of this edition will insure a careful reading of every page. Most of those who buy the paper will preserve it for future reference. Prepare your copy carefully now and send it with the cash to the Special Classified Section, Woman's Edition, Constitution office, at once. No copy will be accepted after noon of Tuesday, June 3. Checks, drafts or postage will be accepted for small amounts from those outside of Atlanta.

This Special Classified Section will carry the regular classifications of The Constitution's want ad pages, but will be separate from the latter, which will appear in their usual position.

FEDERATED WOMEN'S CLUBS OF GEORGIA

LORIMER GAVE ORDERS TO THE LEGISLATURE

Chicago Labor Federation Alleges Ousted Senator Controlled Illinois Solons.

Chicago, July 1.—The Chicago Federation of Labor, at its regular meeting today, readopted its resolution of May 18, in which it was declared that collusion between members of the state legislature and William Lorimer defeated the initiative and referendum bill. The members of the federation, in readopting the resolution, declared that they were "willing" to go to jail, if necessary.

The resolution declared that Lorimer sat behind the speaker's chair at the legislature and directed the battle against the bill. Representative Shannon was charged with taking orders for a coal company, in addition to the original charges, today's resolution denounced the legislature's act as governed by gavel rule, unfair play and political trickery.

Members of the federation were called before the legislature in May last, to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt. The resolution adopted today read:

"Resolved, That the Chicago Federation of Labor readopts the former resolution and protests against the outrageous and unfair treatment accorded the officers of this organization by the house of representatives. The members of the organization of labor reiterate the charges of corruption against the members and the executive board of this organization if given authority to take whatever action in this regard it deems necessary."

STRUCK BY BASEBALL, 4-YEAR-OLD TOT DIES

Ball Hit by Negro Strikes Wm. Evans Over Heart, Killing Him Instantly.

Sandersville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) While playing with children of Hon. George Evans late this afternoon, Paris O'Hara, colored, knocked a baseball which struck 4-year-old William Evans over the heart, killing him instantly. The child's parents were attending the funeral of W. R. Thigpen, brother of Ordinary Thigpen, who succumbed to paralysis last night.

The entire town is shocked. It was thought at first the boy had been hit in the stomach, knocking the breath out of him, but upon the arrival of a physician it was found the boy was dead, having been killed by accident.

The boy is survived by his parents and one brother. He was the nephew of Judge Beverly Evans, of Atlanta. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning.

STEERAGE PASSAGE FOR BISHOP BRENT

He Says the Place for a Clergyman Is With the Common People.

New York, June 1.—A high church dignitary was a steerage passenger on the steamer Caronia, which arrived today from Liverpool. He was the Rt. Rev. Charles R. Brent, Episcopal bishop in the Philippine Islands.

"I came in the steerage," the bishop said, "because I believe the place for a clergyman is with the common people. There I rubbed shoulders with the immigrants, who will some day make American citizens, and if these are a sample of all that come, then America has reason to be proud of her adopted children.

"Those on board the Caronia were mostly from Great Britain and Scandinavia, and they were a clean and wholesome lot, strong and vigorous. I ate the same food and lived with them, and feel better for it."

Bishop Brent is going to Washington to confer with Secretary of War Garrison. He said the Philippines are in fine condition from the standpoint of politics and of the church.

FOSTER SMITH DIED OF A "BROKEN HEART"

Body of Former Atlantan, Who Committed Suicide, Will Be Brought Here.

Washington, June 1.—(Special.)—The body of Foster T. Smith, magazine collector and former soldier, who took his life at Norfolk today as a result of grief over his marital troubles, will be taken to Atlanta, Ga., his former home, where his former wife and a brother now reside. On telegraphic instructions from his brother the body is being cared for by a local undertaker.

Smith drank from a vial of carbolic acid early last night on the Speedway near the Potomac river. He was found stretched upon the grass and was hurried to the hospital. When he reached the emergency he was beyond aid.

Smith had, according to his friends, been despondent for days. He wrote a farewell letter saying that he was dying of a broken heart.

Dunning Not Improving.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—Lee Dunning, mechanician of the Mason automobile, which turned over in the 500-mile race at the speedway on Memorial day, is not improving at the Methodist hospital. Dunning's left lung was injured when three of his ribs were broken. An x-ray examination was to have been made today, but his physicians thought it inadvisable on account of his condition.

Jack Tower, driver of the car, whose leg was broken, is improving rapidly.

CREMATORY ROW NEAR CONCLUSION

W. G. Humphrey Believes Report of Finance Committee Will Be Agreeable to All Parties Interested.

"The crematory dispute will be settled Monday. I feel certain that council will adopt the finance committee report, and that it will be acceptable to all parties."—W. G. Humphrey, finance committee chairman.

"Atlanta cannot afford to pay $276,000 cash this year for the garbage plant. We are making sacrifices; all we ask the Destructor company to do is to make a concession."—Mayor James G. Woodward.

"We still demand $276,000 for our plant, and expect the city to pay us that amount. Otherwise, the matter stands as it did after our conference with the committee."—Samuel N. Evins, attorney Destructor company.

The statements above, made to The Constitution at 8 o'clock last night, indicate that the dispute as to whether or not Atlanta is to get the crematory for $276,000, is still in a tangle.

Numerous plans were discussed over Sunday by city officials, but none were decided on definitely. Chairman W. G. Humphrey, of the finance subcommittee stated that he felt certain that the conference the committee will have with Messrs. Evins and Spence, attorneys for the Destructor company at 10 o'clock Monday morning will lift the dispute from the chaos.

Chairman Humphrey said that the proposition the committee will make to Messrs. Evins and Spence will settle the matter. He would not discuss the plan, but strongly intimated that it would be agreeable to Mayor Woodward and all concerned.

Will Not Discuss Plans.

"I am not at liberty to discuss our proposition, nor the terms," Chairman Humphrey said when asked if the committee would demand that the Destructor company discount the contract for cash. "The committee will make a report to council. I am sure that it will be accepted."

Mayor Woodward says he wants the city to get the crematory as early as possible, but he does not propose to accept the Destructor company's terms. He was asked if he will insist on a discount of $60,000. He replied:

"I'll talk about that after the committee concludes its conference. Maybe we can reach an agreement on another basis."

May Force Mandamus.

The standpat attitude of the mayor is the only serious menace to the early acquisition by the city of the crematory. If he insists on a discount on the contract price for cash, council will be forced into another fight, and the Destructor company attorneys will be compelled to mandamus the mayor to sign the warrants. Attorney Evins intimated Sunday that he would rather settle the dispute out of court because of the delay of the law.

Sales Manager W. D. Dowd expects to have the dispute settled Monday afternoon. He is anxious to return to Savannah, where he has the contract to build an 80-ton plant for $170,000.

ASK TRAFFIC OFFICER TO PREVENT SPEEDING

About thirty citizens living in the neighborhood of the intersection of Peachtree, West Peachtree and Baker streets have signed a petition which will be presented to the police department, asking that a traffic policeman be stationed permanently at the intersection of these streets, in order to prevent speeding.

The first name on the petition is that of T. R. Southerland, of 11 West Baker street, who was struck by an automobile while alighting from a street car one evening last February, and suffered both legs broken. Mr. Southerland's friends will be glad to know that he is able to be out once more, although he still has to use crutches.

On account of the intersection of five points here and because the bulk of the Peachtree street traffic passes this intersection, the citizens believe this to be one of the most dangerous spots to pedestrians in the city. It is especially dangerous to women and children.

They believe that the stationing of a traffic policeman there will alleviate these conditions to a considerable extent.

The following are the signers of the petition:

T. R. Southerland, R. E. Richardson, Mrs. A. L. Richardson, A. L. Richardson, Mrs. H. W. Potts, John S. Holliday, J. S. Holliday, A. T. Priddy, Miss M. F. Weaver, Miss Eva Bell, Mrs. T. J. Weaver, Ernest Corn, H. M. Holliday, R. D. Lee, Mrs. J. W. Holliday, Miss Mary Bohannon, C. P. Ford, Mrs C. F. Ford, L. C. Hoover, Mrs. G. M. Sullivan, Mr. Tucker, Mr. Kirkpatrick, Mr. Henderson, Miss Jessie Threlkeld, Mrs. S. W. Gunnison and J. T. Holleman.

ALL KINDS OF WEATHER EXPERIENCED SUNDAY

The weather in Atlanta was "twixt and between" Sunday.

Early in the morning the prospects were good for a church day, and by 10:30 o'clock women in white summer garments and men in cool serges and mohairs could be seen on every street, going either churchward, or else toward the various parks.

By afternoon it became insufferably hot. Coats were shed by the men and a felt hat could not be seen on the whole length of Peachtree.

When it looked as though the occupants of porch swings at night were going to have a hot time of it, a windstorm, accompanied by a few drops of welcome rain, came at 8 o'clock, and relieved the situation. The rest of the night was cool, and indications point to a clear day today.

Editor to Be Tried.

Paterson, N. J., June 1.—Alexander Boyd, editor of the Weekly issue of Passaic, charged with uttering inflammatory remarks against the police department of Paterson in connection with the silk workers' strike, will be placed on trial tomorrow.

Field Mass for Dead of Spanish-American War

Especial interest attached to the annual memorial mass for the soldier and sailor dead of the Spanish-American war at Brooklyn navy yard this year because of the celebration planned for Memorial day for the unveiling of the Maine memorial monument. The service was attended by 20,000 persons, and among the clergy who officiated was the Very Rev. John P. Chidwick, who was chaplain of the Maine when she was blown up in Havana harbor. He was master of ceremonies at the mass. This yearly tribute by the Roman Catholic church to those who lost their lives in the war of 1898 is held the Sunday preceding Memorial day. This was the eleventh annual mass, and it was conducted under the auspices of Gloucester Camp No. 5, United Spanish War Veterans, and the Long Island branches of the Knights of Columbus. The grand marshal was Captain Robert N. Mackin, and James S. Long, adjutant general and chief-of-staff, was at the head of the marchers. Behind them came detachments from the Fourteenth and Forty-seventh regiments, national guard, and the Irish Volunteers, the United Spanish War Veterans, United States Volunteer Life Caving Corps, life-saving service, United States customs service, Naval Employees' Benefit association, police, with Inspector John F. Dwyer in command; firemen in charge of Deputy Chief Kirk, Manhattan and Brooklyn letter carriers and many Catholic societies. The honor guard, composed of the survivors of the battleship Maine, came down the grounds and formed themselves into the shape of a cross in front of the altar. The priests followed.

THREE KILLED BY LIGHTNING BOLTS

Mrs. J. C. Thomas and Son, of Macon, and Sam Griffin, of Cordele, Victims of Saturday's Storm.

Macon, Ga., June 1.—Mrs. J. C. Thomas and her son, Jesse C. Thomas, Jr., were instantly killed and four other members of the family and a neighbor's child injured by a stroke of lightning which struck the Thomas home, 2 miles north of Jeffersonville, 25 miles from Macon, Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock during a severe electrical storm. The injured are J. C. Thomas, Sr., Elliott Thomas, aged 5 years; Louise Thomas, aged 12, and Merrill Kethvin, aged 14 years.

Because of the fact that telephone and telegraph wires were put out of commission by the storm, news of the tragedy did not reach here until today, when a relative came here to secure the services of an undertaker.

The members of the family were gathered on the front porch of their home watching the antics of the storm. The bolt struck the rear of the house, coming out through the front. The father was the first to fall, but retained consciousness. He saw his wife and his son stricken dead, and for a time thought the other children had suffered a like fate.

In a few minutes he was able to rise, and went to their assistance.

The body of Mrs. Thomas was badly burned, as was that of her son. Louise, the daughter, was paralyzed for several hours, but has suffered no serious results.

The hair was singed from the head of Elliott, the 9-year-old boy, and his neck and chest were burned.

Mrs. Thomas was in a delicate condition at the time of her death, and a visit of the stork had been expected at any hour.

The Thomas family has resided near Jeffersonville for about a year, coming there from South Carolina.

Sam Griffin Killed.

Cordele, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Sam Griffin, the 17-year-old son of H. A. Griffin, a prominent farmer of Crisp county, was instantly killed by lightning last night at his home in the Hanley settlement during the severe wind and electrical storm that swept over this section. The bolt which killed young Griffin also shocked several of the members of the family, though none of them were seriously jured.

A barn near which the young man was standing when killed, was set on fire by lightning and completely destroyed, together with two mules, a number of hogs and a large quantity of oats. As far as has been learned, no other serious damage was done by the storm in this section.

RULE BY COMMISSION PROPOSED FOR FLORIDA

Legislature to Consider Resolution to Abolish Both the House and Senate.

Tallahassee, Fla., June 1.—Tomorrow the Florida legislature is expected to consider a resolution which contemplates abolishment of both house and senate and the establishment of a state commission form of government. The resolution provides for sixteen commissioners, each to receive a salary of $3,000 annually. These commissioners would, according to the plan, elect a governor whose salary would be not less than $10,000 a year. It is said that the legislature is dissatisfied with the amount of necessary legislation enacted during the present session.

To Members of Retail Grocers and Fresh Meat Men's Association of the City of Atlanta:

Gentlemen: It so happens that the Woman's Edition of The Atlanta Constitution to be issued by the Federated Club Women of Georgia appears on the morning of Wednesday, June 4, the same day as the grand parade.

As the association particularly desires the sympathetic co-operation of the good women of Atlanta, and as they participate in the proceeds of this edition for the Ella F. White Memorial Endowment Fund, and in order to show them our interest in their work, I hereby request all members and others who are in sympathy with it to buy at least one copy of the Woman's Edition, which will be on sale, as I understand, everywhere in the city.

I have already purchased 100 copies for the use of the association, but all members can further show their good will toward the women by individual purchases.

O. T. CAMP,
President Retail Grocers and Butchers' Association.

GRUBB EXPECTED HERE TOMORROW

Judge in Famous Huff Contempt Case Will Probably File His Decision in Court Then.

Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Ala., who presided in the famous Huff contempt case in Macon, will be in Atlanta tomorrow, at which time his decision in the case will probably be filed. Attorney General T. S. Felder, who represented Mr. Huff in the contempt proceedings, has received from Judge Grubb a copy of a tentative decision which he is not at liberty to give out pending the filing of the final decision in court.

Mr. Felder will have a conference with Judge Grubb on his arrival here, and the final decision in the case will probably be filed immediately afterwards.

The contempt proceedings grew out of a letter which Mr. Huff wrote to Judge Emory Speer, and at the same time furnished to the press, containing sensational charges of malfeasance in office in connection with the management of the dong-drawn-out Huff insolvency case, which has been hanging fire in the United States court at Macon for fifteen years. The issue to be decided is whether or not the insult was offered to the man or the court or whether it was sufficiently within the purview of the court to be taken cognisance of as a case of contempt.

CRIES FOR HELP SAVE DR. ARROWOOD $500

A pair of lusty lungs saved $500 in cash for Dr. S. W. Arrowood, of 37 Stonewall street, last night.

Dr. Arrowood was walking on Walker street, homeward bound, when he passed the Walker street school. Suddenly he heard some one call:

"Hold up your hands."

And then before the doctor had time to realize the significance of the affair, two men, whose color he could not determine, jumped from behind him, and one smashed him on the head with a sandbag.

Then the doctor began to cry for help very lustily and loudly. The holdup men fled, and Dr. Arrowood went to the nearest phone and called the police station. Call Officers Wood and Milam were rushed to the scene, only to find that the assailants had fled. Dr. Arrowood was rushed to Grady hospital, where he was given medical attendance. It is not known yet whether his wound will be very serious or not.

Refinery Destroyed.

New Orleans, June 1.—Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the refinery building of the Terminal Oil company here. The loss is estimated at $60,000.

HUNT FOR LOBBY TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON THE SENATORS

Senators Must Tell About Their Pocketbooks, Their Investments and Clients When They Face Probers.

PRESIDENT WILSON MAY GIVE EVIDENCE

Some of the Republican Senators Are Financially Interested in Preventing Revision of Certain Tariff Schedules.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, June 1.—(Special.)—United States senators will be required to tell the contents of their pocketbooks, their safedepositboxes and their professional engagement list, when they appear tomorrow before a committee of their own members to answer questions as to the existence of a lobby.

President Wilson has turned the spotlight on the senate, as it has not been turned in years. He has urged that a "numerous, industrious and insidious lobby" is at work to defeat the tariff bill in the senate. If the testimony given by senators under oath shows that they are connected financially or professionally with any company interested in the tariff, it will put these members at a serious disadvantage in defeating the Underwood bill. Any changes in that measure will now be credited to the lobby.

Senator Bacon will be one of the first four senators examined. He is no longer practicing law and has not been in years. So far as is known, his property consists of real estate in Macon.

Senator Hoke Smith's property consists almost exclusively of his central and suburban real estate around Atlanta, including his interest in the Piedmont hotel.

While no one believes there is anything like the situation in Washington today that existed when the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill was under discussion, when it was notorious that senators were speculating in stocks or like that which prevailed two years ago when the Payne-Aldrich bill was up, there are enough possibilities in the present situation to make it extremely interesting.

Some Senators With Interests.

Senator Smith, of South Carolina, who offered an amendment to Cummins' resolution of inquiry, which it was thought would kill it, but which the democrats finally adopted, is largely interested in cotton mills.

Senator Warren, of Wyoming, whom Senator Bailey called "the greatest shepherd since Abraham," is the head and front of the opposition to the revised schedule K, while "Uncle Ike" Stephenson, of Wisconsin, the richest man in the senate, is known as the "Millionaire Lumberman," and may be reasonably expected to fight to take lumber off the free list.

Few of the democratic senators are men of great wealth. Popular principles changed the aspect of the senate from the days when it was called "the millionaires' club."

Senator Newlands, of Nevada, has large mining interests, Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, is the owner and editor of a big newspaper in Omaha, and Senator Owen is a banker and large land owner in Oklahoma.

Whether any of these have interests that they are trying to take care of by amendments to the Underwood tariff bill will be disclosed when they appear before the investigating committee.

The public is urged by the committee to aid in the lobby investigation and to report any discrepancies in the testimony of witnesses.

There has been a great exodus of "legislative agents" from Washington since the investigation was ordered, but they will be brought back to Washington if still within the jurisdiction of the United States.

Where Will Investigation Lead?

The lobby investigation will begin tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock in the big judiciary hearing room in the senate office building. Senator Overman's investigating committee plans to hear four senators an hour.

Each member of the senate will be called on to tell what he knows about a tariff lobby and to go on record as to his personal business affairs and professional associations. He will relate to any item in the tariff bill. All are expected to respond willingly to the quiz, but many of them are wondering just what to say when the scope of business and professional men who have been to see them about the tariff matters since the bill passed the house.

Just where the investigation will lead, the members of the judiciary subcommittee, headed by Senator Overman, do not know. What part President Wilson will take in the inquiry they have not learned, but the president openly stated he wanted the inquiry and that he had information regarding a tariff lobby which he willingly would submit to the investiga-

Weather Prophecy
GENERALLY FAIR.

Washington, June 1.—Forecast:

Georgia—Generally fair Monday and Tuesday; light variable winds.

Oklahoma—Cloudy and somewhat cooler Monday; Tuesday fair.

Virginia, North and South Carolina—Local thundershowers Monday; Tuesday probably fair, light variable winds.

Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana—Generally fair Monday and Tuesday; light variable winds.

East Texas—Fair Monday, not quite so warm in north portion; Tuesday fair, moderate south winds.

West Texas—Fair Monday, cooler in the panhandle section; Tuesday fair.

West Virginia—Cloudy Monday; Tuesday fair.

Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky—Fair, not quite so warm Monday; Tuesday fair.

tors. Whether the president will appear personally before the committee or communicate information in writing remains to be developed. The committee has notified him that the inquiry is on and will leave to his judgment the part he is to take.

Senators are to be called alphabetically in blocks of four beginning tomorrow morning and asked a series of questions prepared yesterday by the committee. The first witnesses will be Senators Ashurst, Bacon, Bankhead and Borah.

Work on the Tariff Bill.

Work on the tariff bill will be resumed tomorrow. Subcommittees expect to complete their revision of the schedules in time for the full committee to begin preparation of a report by June 9. The program i to submit the bill to a democratic caucus by June 16 and to report it to the senate by June 23.

Meanwhile President Wilson is working on his currency message and house and senate leaders are preparing bills on currency reform to be taken up after the tariff bill is passed, provided it is decided to prolong the extra session. Even should congress decide to adjourn when the tariff bill is enacted the banking committees would be directed to continue work on currency reform to be submitted immediately after the opening of congress in regular session next winter.

The West Virginia investigation authorized to be conducted by the education and labor committee of the senate, will be initiated tomorrow by a subcommittee composed of Senators Swanson, Shields, Martine, Borah and Kenyon. It will meet first in Washington to inquire into matters of record concerning conditions of the strike in the Paint Creek coal region. The inquiry probably will extend over many weeks.

Democrats to Restrict Legislation.

Democratic leaders in the senate are planning to restrict as far as possible the legislation at this session to tariff, currency and any appropriations that may be deemed imperative. This plan is favored today by Representative Underwood, of Alabama, the majority leader, and it will probably be in a resolution to be presented at a caucus of the house democrats tomorrow. All the house committees will be named and they may consider pending matters with a view to action at the next regular session of congress in December.

President Wilson's correspondence with Senator Tillman, which developed that the president thought currency reform impossible at the extra session, to prevent opportunity for any artificial financial disturbance after the tariff bill becomes law, probably will be followed soon by with a special message to congress conveying Mr. Wilson's ideas on the general subject.

The caucus tomorrow is primarily for the purpose of passing upon the entire committee organization of the house.

Some of the new members, anxious about patronage at the capitol are taking about a plan to get their share. All of the 200 odd appointments were made when the democrats took control of the sixty-second congress.

House democrats have been marking time since they sent the tariff bill over to the senate, and most of the members are in their home states waiting until there is final business before the body. For several weeks the house has been perfunctorily meeting every three days, and that program will be continued until there is business ready.

Wilson Keeps Staring Something.

Not a week passes when President Wilson does not start something to shake up the precedents and keep congress astir. His denunciation of the tariff lobby in the early part of May marked the climax in a series of unusual executive acts, and has precipitated an inquiry, the like of which never has been known in legislative annals of the nation.

When the president told the ways and means committee that he wanted free raw wool and ultimate free sugar in the tariff bill the committee wrote the bill that way. When he declared that he wished to deliver the tariff message in person to congress, the house and senate set in joint session to hear him. Later his decision to go to the president's room in the capitol to talk business with senators and congressmen was carried out without hindrance or friction.

His vigorous announcement a few weeks ago in the midst of rumors of party wrangling on tariff measures that he would not compromise issues on wool and sugar, served to tighten the administrative lines, and now his declaration that the country must be rid of the burden of an insidious tariff lobby has aroused the senate to investigation.

Getting Ready for Campaign.

Both democrats and republicans of congress are busy now planning reorganization for the coming campaign. The democrats have already selected the experts to formulate tomorrow night Representative Johnson, of Kentucky is being strongly backed for the chairmanship. A lively contest is looked for over the post of treasurer, now held by Representative Flood, of Virginia. Representatives of the congressional committee will discuss with the democratic national committee plans for the campaign efforts.

The republican congressional committee will meet soon to organize, and republican leaders already are considering what course to pursue. First, a conference will be held looking to cooperation between the national and congressional committees in managing campaign, with the conferees for national committees will be Chairman C. D. Hilles, Senators Crane of Massachusetts, Jackson of Maryland and Sanders of Tennessee, and for the congressional committee Senator Weeks of Massachusetts and Representatives Burke of South Dakota, Woods of Iowa and Fairchild of New York.

PLAYERS' CLUB WILL GIVE SHOW TUESDAY

"The Importance of Being Earnest" Will Be Presented at the Grand.

"The Importance of Being Earnest," one of the cleverest of the Oscar Wilde plays, will be produced tomorrow evening, June 3, at the Grand, by the Players' club of Atlanta, of which organization Mrs. T. B. Felder is president.

The members of the cast are Mrs. John Mrashall Slaton, Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott, Mrs. William Owens, Miss Hildreth Burton Smith. The men are Mr. Lamar Hill, Mr. Marsh Adair, Mr. Hamilton Douglas, Jr., and Mr. Frank Taylor.

The boxes for the performance have been sold, and the audience will be one of the largest and most fashionable of the season. After the performance the members of the cast will have supper at the Piedmont Driving club.

MINTON ENGLISH CHINA ON DISPLAY TOMORROW

Mater & Berkele, agents in Atlanta for the celebrated Minton English china, have announced that on Tuesday and Wednesday their store will give an exhibition of a line of new samples of this china. A representative of the Minton firm will be present with a new line of samples which will be shown to all who care to attend the exhibition.

One of the most attractive lines to be exhibited is that of the handsome service plates, ranging in price from $50 to $500 per dozen, and these alone are said by experts to be well worth the time spent in attending the display.

Nathan Straus Ill.

New York, June 1.—Nathan Strauss, New York merchant and philanthropist, returned here today aboard the steamer Caronia, suffering from a nervous breakdown. It was said to night that his condition was not serious.

Al Klawitter Sold.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—Pitcher Al Klawitter today was sold by the Detroit Americans to the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league.

MORTUARY

Sam Saloshin.

Sam Saloshin, 27 years old, a former resident of Atlanta, is dead in Denver, Colo. News of his death was received here yesterday. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Saloshin, of this city. The body will be brought here for interment. Funeral exercises will be announced later.

Mrs. B. L. Knox, Alpine.

Lyerly, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—The body of Mrs. B. L. Knox, who died at Atlanta, Ga., after a long illness, was brought to Lyerly and carried to Alpine, near here, for interment. Mrs. Knox has relatives in this county and has been known and loved. She was the wife of B. L. Knox, formerly of this county.

Mrs. Richard Day. Trion.

Lyerly, Ga., June 2.—(Special.)—Mrs. Richard Day, wife of a prominent merchant of Trion, died at a sanitarium in Chattanooga, where she was carried for treatment. The body was brought to Pennsville, Ga., for interment. She is survived by her husband and five children.

Mrs. James Parr, Woodstock.

Woodstock, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) Mrs. Parr, wife of James Parr, died last night at her home in Woodstock after an illness of about two years. She will be interred at Bascomb cemetery at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. She leaves a husband, one son and two daughters, and a host of friends, to mourn her loss.

T. M. Jackson.

T. M. Jackson, aged 35, died at a local sanitarium at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Horton Walker, of Augusta, Ga. His body was sent there last midnight Sunday, where the interment will be held.

Merrill Mayfield.

Merrill M. Mayfield, the 5-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Mayfield, of 216 Oakland avenue, died at the family residence yesterday afternoon. The funeral will be held at Pleasant Grove, Ga., today at 11 o'clock.

GREEKS AND BULGARS ONCE MORE FIGHTING

Situation in Vicinity of Saloniki Seems Very Serious—Greece Warns Bulgaria.

Saloniki, June 1.—Although Greek headquarters have strictly enjoined all commanders to avoid engagements, the Bulgarians are trying to push back the Greek forces and several encounters have ensued.

The Greek minister at Sofia has been ordered to protest and to inform the Bulgarian government that the Greek government declines responsibility for the results of Bulgarian provocation.

A long conference has been held here by the Greek minister at Belgrade, the Servian minister at Athens, and several Servian officers, with M. Venizelos, the Greek premier.

The Servians are concentrating a large force at Ferot, 110 miles from the Bulgarian frontier, and 60 miles from Sofia.

Premiers in Conference.

Sofia, June 1.—The Bulgarian and Servian premiers met on the frontier tonight and hopes are entertained that they will be able to reach a settlement on the questions in dispute between the two countries.

Greek Premier Resigns.

London, June 1.—The Daily Mail's Sofia correspondent says a report has reached there that the Greek premier, M. Venizelos, has handed his resignation to King Constantine, declaring he does not desire the responsibility of the warlike disposition of the troops with regard to Bulgaria.

FRANK WANTED ROOM TO CONCEAL THE BODY

not see Frank take the notes from his desk in the office on the second floor, and that he knew nothing of the stapling of the notes together to have told of overhearing Frank's communication with the Formby woman.

Lanford Attacks Mangum.

Chief Lanford in a talk with The Constitution Sunday afternoon, rapp Sheriff C. Wheeler Mangum for his attitude in preventing the detectives from confronting Frank with the negro Conley, and his remarkable admission. The detective declares that Mangum is playing politics in an effort to remain in the office of sheriff is catering to friends of his prisoner by refusing to admit the sleuths to the suspect's cell.

Will Not Reveal Names.

He will not reveal the names of the operators and will not state positively the location of this evidence, except that the fall of certain telephonic communication alleged to have been heard by the suspected pencil factory official during the night of the Mary Phagan tragedy.

James Conley, the negro sweeper, arrested on the charge of the police headquarter's prison than he did in the Tower. Chief Lanford says that it was at the negro's request that he was removed from the station house. Attempts were made, the chief declares, to intimidate the imprisoned sweeper. "This itself," says the chief, "is evidence of Sheriff Mangum's partiality. He should have allowed no one to see the negro, inasmuch as he kept everyone from Frank except his friends. Conley never asked to see any of those folks who came to his cell and threatened him. It's outrageous, that's all I can say about it. A new regime is needed. Politics and the sheriff's administration can't go hand in hand."

Conley has made no new confession. Lanford and his men say they do not expect anything more from him than the story that has already been told. Solicitor Dorsey even is said to have expressed the same opinion. That the sweeper is telling the unadulterated truth is the opinion of headquarters detectives and Superintendent Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons.

Grocers and Butchers Plan Great Time on June 4th

One of the main reasons for holding the monster parade of over 1,000 grocery wagons on Wednesday afternoon upon the inauguration of the Wednesday half holiday is to let the householders of Atlanta know that their grocery store and butcher shop will be closed on that afternoon of each week during the months of June, July and August, and in further carrying out of this plan the association of grocers and butchers has printed thousands of small cards bearing this announcement.

These are ready in the office of the association at 214 Rhodes building, and will be furnished upon request free to any member of the association.

The cards really come from the employees of the grocery and butcher stores in the city, and bear upon them a plea to the women of Atlanta to cooperate in the movement by ordering their supply of butter on Tuesday or as early as possible Wednesday, so that the employees may get their half holiday on June 4 by the noon and yet supply the customers as usual.

Parade Will Be Unique.

The parade, which will move at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon through the principal downtown streets, will be one of the most unique in the history of Atlanta, as well as being one of the largest processions that ever passed through the city.

Employees of the various stores will be in the wagon and will throw confetti, as well as valuable souvenirs and thousands of advertising cards, out to the people watching the parade.

There will be scores of wagons and automobiles, representing wholesale houses which have joined in the movement, and included in the 3-mile line of march will be four bands to furnish sprightly music.

After the parade the employees will disperse to spend their first half holiday in as many different ways as their inclinations may prompt.

Special Run of Films.

The moving picture houses have agreed to put on a specially fine run of films for the afternoon and evening, and the "movies" will doubtless attract hundreds. Races at the Motordrome will also prove attractive to many more, while others will spend the afternoon quietly with their families in the city parks.

Piedmont park, with its lake, will be one place that is sure to attract its quota of the throng which will make a festival of the afternoon of.

L. W. Rogers' employees have issued a challenge to any other force to play them a game of ball, and this will be arranged and announced before the day arrives.

It is expected that as many as eight or possibly twelve teams will be organized among the younger members of the large army of grocery and butcher employees, and that a regular league will be formed in the association.

Sunday School Reports Show Steady Growth in Past Year

With the first tabulation of reports today, through the agreement reached last week by officials of Atlanta Sunday schools, the steady growth of the past year is plainly indicated. The exchange of reports are made for the purpose of determining the relative standing of the Sunday schools, and stimulating their growth to even greater ratio than it has been in the past.

Out of the nineteen schools listed below only three of them had attendance on this Sunday lower than their attendance a year ago. All the others showed increases averaging about 75 per school, the greatest increase being shown by the First Christian, which has grown from 500 to 903 in the year. This splendid growth was due largely to the contest which they have lately finished with the Second Baptist.

Superintendents of a number of other schools have expressed a desire to enter the publicity arrangement, which will last for three months, and it is expected that some interesting developments in the Sunday school world will follow the installation of this feature. The complete list, as arranged by the executive committee in charge Sunday, is as follows:

	Church Membership	Attendance Year Ago.	Sunday's Attendance.
St. Paul Methodist	1,850	622	583
Tabernacle Baptist	1,500	727	813

NEEDHAM AND MILAN HAVE BEEN RELEASED

Charleston, S. C., June 1.—George Needham, manager, and Horace Milan, outfielder, were released today by the Charleston club of the South Atlantic league. Gould Mercer, of Macon, has been offered the manager's berth. Milan is a brother of Clyde Milan, of the Washington Senators.

Church of the Brethren.

Warsaw, Ind., June 1.—The annual conference of the Church of the Brethren was opened at Winona Lake, near here, today, with every state in the union represented. The attendance, estimated at many thousands, was so large that not all could find shelter from a hard rain, and many were thoroughly soaked. The conference will continue the remainder of the week, when the business sessions will be held.

MEXICO GETS MONEY TO PAY RAILWAY NOTES

Having Secured $100,000,000. Issue of $10,000,000 Notes of Nat'l Rys. Will Be Paid.

New York, June 1.—Negotiation by the Mexican government of a foreign loan of approximately $100,000,000 for governmental purposes and on account of the National railways of Mexico having been completed, local bankers interested in the matter announced tonight that the issue of $10,000,000 two-year notes of the National Railways of Mexico maturing tomorrow will be paid. Conferences among banking interests here yesterday, at which ways and means for meeting the maturing railway notes were discussed, was followed late last night by an announcement from Mexico City that the loan pending in Paris through which it was hoped the problem of the railroad financing would be solved, had been successfully negotiated.

The railroad's finances are closely interlocked with those of the Mexican government itself, as the National Railroad railways is a government enterprise.

Official announcement in regard to both the government and the railroad financing are expected tomorrow. The Mexican government loan, it was stated by bankers here tonight, is $75,000,000, and the National Railways of Mexico loan about $27,000,000.

Rebel Leader Killed.

Laredo, Texas, June 1.—In the fighting at Colombia, Mexico, yesterday, Captain Longoria, leader of the rebel band which was routed by the federals and twenty-one of his followers were killed. Six federals also were killed, all of them, it is said, by bullets from Longoria's revolver.

Longoria, an Indian, organized his band and swore vengeance on the federals when a relative name Pancho was hanged a month ago, charged with being a rebel spy.

After the government troops started on their return march to Nuevo Laredo, another band of rebels moved to Colombia from Hidalgo and took possession of the town.

To Fight Zapata.

El Paso, Texas, June 1.—Generals Antonio Rabago and Eduardo Orozco, Jr., who met as enemies in the Madero revolution, have been chosen by President Huerta to conduct the campaign against Zapata rebels in southern Mexico. General Rabago, recently removed as military governor of Chihuahua state, left here today on his way to Mexico City by way of New Orleans and Havana.

The removal to the south will leave the northern situation in the hands of General Tellez, in Coahuila; General Mercede, in Chihuahua, and General Ojeda, in Sonora today officially are new men in northern campaigns.

AT THE THEATERS

Musical Comedy Tabloid.

(At the Bijou.)

The College Girls, Max Spiegel's up-to-date tabloid musical comedy, will hold the stage of the Bijou all this week. Much is expected of this attraction, as it has the reputation of being one of the prettiest and most pleasing tabloids on this circuit. The chorus girls are said to be the pick of looks, and will doubtless create a sensation during the week. The lines are bright, the costumes are fetching and the music tuneful and pretty.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the orpyth.)

Lillian Shaw, the star dialect character comedienne, will head the Keith vaudeville bill at the Forsyth this week. Jack Hazard, whose songs and stories have been a feature on the stage in this city, is one of the features. Paul Seldom's Poems in Marble will be an artistic feature of the bill. This act is presented by a beautiful woman and two splendid specimens of physical perfection, who pose in reproduction of works of art. Ward and Dreher, the character comedians, will offer their travesty on stage life, and the Caites Brothers, eccentric dancers, will also appear. The three Alex. Is Expert novelty act, will have an important part of the program, and a special singing feature will be offered by Wright and Rose Dietrich, who are great local favorites.

POPE CELEBRATING HIS 78TH BIRTHDAY

Messages of Congratulation Are Received at Vatican From All Parts of World.

Rome, June 1.—The pope will be 78 years old tomorrow and innumerable telegrams and messages from all parts of the world have arrived felicitating the pontiff and wishing him many happy years of life. The pope will spend his birthday very quietly, admitting only relatives and members of his entourage to his apartments.

The pope this morning received in farewell audience Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, who is leaving for home Wednesday.

The pontiff appeared as strong and alert as when Cardinal O'Connell saw him May 21. They conversed at length. The pope inquired regarding the missionary congress which is to meet at Boston in October, saying he understood it would be attended by about sixty bishops from the United States and Canada. He wished the congress every success. When the audience was about to end, the pope, recalling that when he last received Cardinal O'Connell, his companions, Mgr. Michael J. Splaine and Dr. J. R. Slattery, of Boston, remained in an ante room because they were not in regulation attire, asked:

"Were are your friends?"

The cardinal replied:

"In the ante chamber."

"I hope," said the pope, laughingly, that this time they are suitably costumed to appear before me." Receiving an affirmative answer, the pope requested that Mgr. Splaine and Dr. Slattery be presented.

Dr. Slattery was the first physician received by the pope since his illness, with the exception of his personal attendants. The audience was also outside the audience room, Dr. Slattery was surrounded by officials of the vatican and others anxious to learn the impression he had received. Dr. Slattery said:

"No doctor could fail to note that the pope has robust and healthy fiber. I could tell from the grasp of his hand and the vivacity of his eyes that he has remaining plenty of life, that the pontiff has many years to live. While holding my hand I felt it as in a vise. The holy father does not look in the least like a man who has been seriously ill. I could see by the general appearance and the color of his skin that his circulation is excellent."

PAPAL NUNCIO HATED BY SANTIAGO PEOPLE

Santiago, Chile, June 1.—Opposition to Monsignor Enrique Sibilia, papal nuncio at Santiago and archbishop of Sidie, took the form today of demonstrations here and in the principal towns in the country, in which thousands of persons participated. A formal request will be made to the government to retire Monsignor Sibilia as persona non grata to the Chilean people.

Monsignor Sibilia was appointed to his present post in 1909. In September, 1910, he caused a sensation by withdrawing from the cathedral during the funeral services held in honor of the President Fernandez Albano, complaining that he had been placed below the special ambassadors appointed to the centenary celebration.

LOW WAGES FOR MEN AND VICE QUESTION

Chicago, June 1.—The relation of low wages to men to the vice question will be investigated by the Illinois senate welfare commission at its meeting here next Friday. The commission will seek to establish a fair minimum on which a man in Chicago can support himself and family, and will endeavor to learn how many men are being paid less than this amount. It will also seek to learn to what extent insufficiency of wake operates to lessen the number of marriages and the birth rate in home influence.

Summons for more than 100 witnesses have been given the sergeant-at-arms to serve.

The growth of a Nation depends on its means of communication. Western Union with the Bell System has connected thousands of places not hitherto reached by telegraph.

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY

OLD OFFICERS HONORED BY THE GEORGIA BAR

Secretary Orville A. Park and Treasurer Z. D. Harrison Are Named Again.

The list of officers of the Georgia Bar association as formally announced by the association includes the following men: Robert C. Alston, of Atlanta, president; G. E. Maddox, of Rome; J. R. Phillips, of Louisville; Frank H. Gartard, of Columbus, and E. P. Moon, of LaGrange, vice presidents. Z. D. Harrison, of Atlanta, who for the past thirty years, or since the organization, has been treasurer, was elected again, despite his request that some one else be given the place. Orville A. Park, of Macon, who for twenty years has been secretary, was also chosen again to serve the association.

On the permanent commission on procedure and law reform, Alex W. Smith, of Atlanta, was chosen in place of the late Judge John L. Hopkins. This commission is made by Judge Andrew J. Cobb, former supreme court justice, and its purpose is to continue in force until it has completed the work of suggesting reform in the procedure and laws of the state.

After the lengthy discussion and refusal of the proposal that a constitutional convention should be called this summer, the members of the association voted that should any changes be shown to be needed in the constitution of Georgia that they be made by amendment.

The meeting closed with memorials read by H. H. Dean, Jr., of Columbus, in honor of the following members whose deaths have occurred within the past year: Judge Hopkins, James D. Kilpatrick and Peter Francisco Smith, all of Atlanta.

Heart-Felt Religion Is Solution of Jesus For the Race Problem

"Heart-felt religion is the solution of Jesus for the problem of the races. Both the industrial and the literary types of education may be helpful, but the root of the trouble is not in the hands or the heads of the people, but in their hearts."

Thus declared Rev. H. H. Proctor at the First Congregational church, colored, last night, in the beginning of a series of sermons on "Messages from the Heart of the Race." "Our race today," he said, "in the midst of its present prosperity, needs to take counsel from the heart of its fathers in the day of their adversity. Prosperity is a greater test of one's fidelity than adversity.

"Our fathers sought for that type of religion that was felt in the heart. This was the kind Jesus urged, when he said, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart.' Heart-felt religion is not like a coat that may be put on and off at will; it is life-blood that fills every part of the spiritual body. It is based on love. It is on the basis of God's love to man that Jesus appeals for man's love to God."

JOHN G. KENNEDY DEAD

For 47 Years He Was Engineer for W. & A.

John G. Kennedy, aged 68, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 231 Simpson street. He was widely known in Atlanta, where he had many friends. Mr. Kennedy, at the time of his death, was a stationary engineer for the Western and Atlantic railroad, a position which he had held for forty-seven years.

Surviving him are seven children, W. D., P. P., T. J. and F. G. Kennedy; Mrs. J. H. Chastain, Mrs. J. D. Rollins and Miss Helen Kennedy.

Funeral services will be held some time Tuesday afternoon. The hour of the services and place of interment will be announced later.

"SCRIPTURAL HOLINESS," DR. HOLDERBY'S SUBJECT

"The Doctrine of Scriptural Holiness" was the subject of Dr. Holderby's sermon Sunday morning at Moore Memorial church, and was in part as follows:

"The doctrine of sanctification as taught by those who call themselves 'Holiness people' is dangerous, and entirely contrary to the teachings of the Bible.

"To say that we are perfectly holy is wicked presumption. The man who declares that he cannot sin deceives himself and makes God a liar.

"This is what the Bible teaches. Read I. John 1:8-10. If we say that we have no sin we make Him a liar and the truth is not in us.

"The false doctrine of sinless perfection in this life leads to fanaticism and the most dangerous fanatics in the world are religious fanatics.

"These religious fanatics have done more to hinder the cause of religion than to commend it. We can't fool the world all the time. People know that the so-called holy people are not sinless.

"Sanctification as taught in the Bible is a gradual development. The Christian is exhorted to go on unto perfection. We are to grow in grace. But sinless perfection is not attained in this life. The apostle Paul had reached perhaps as high a state of holiness as any man, and yet just before his death he exclaimed: 'O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the power of sin?'"

Swift's Silver-Leaf Lard

Doughnuts need not be grease soaked, tough, indigestible. Look to the shortening you use and the frying fat. Swift's Silver-Leaf Lard best for doughnut success. Use it and you will have the satisfaction of having your friends say, "Delicious, I must try your recipe."

For doughnuts that melt in your mouth, try this recipe:

1 cup sugar; 2½ tablespoonsful Swift's Silver-Leaf Lard; 2 eggs; 1 cup milk; 4 teaspoons baking powder; ¼ teaspoon cinnamon; ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg; 1½ teaspoon salt.

Cream lard and add yolk of sugar. Beat egg until light, add remaining sugar, combine the two mixtures. Add 3½ cups flour, baking powder, salt and spices and enough more flour to make a dough just stiff enough to roll. Roll out cut and fry in deep fat (Swift's Silver-Leaf Lard). Drain on brown paper.

Use Swift's Silver-Leaf Lard and have tasty pastry.

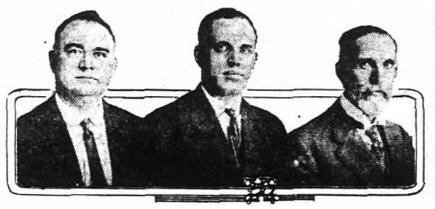
Machinery Exhibit to Feature Convention of Oil Mill Heads



Oil Mill Superintendents' Auxiliary. Reading from left to right, S. L. Dickey, vice president; T. C. Myers, secretary and treasurer, and J. C. Burrus, president.

An educational feature for the oil mill superintendents present at the convention which is to be in Atlanta on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week will be one of the most ambitious efforts of the men who are preparing for the meeting.

The entire floor space at the Auditorium-Armory will be taken up in exhibits of all kinds of machinery, and this will doubtless more than repay any superintendent for his expenses in attending the meeting of the association.

The social and business side of the organization will not be forgotten either, and a number of delightful affairs have been planned. A buffet smoker which is to be a "stag" affair will be given on Thursday night; on Friday night the delegates will attend a theater party at the Forsyth, and on Saturday they will enjoy an old-fashioned barbecue in East Point at the plant of the Atlanta Manufacturing and Supply company.

New County May Be Named For Late Allen D. Candler

Dedication of the monument to the late Governor Allen D. Candler, at Gainesville, next Tuesday, June 3, calls to mind the face that Georgia, as a rule, has done little to honor the memory of her deceased chief executives.

Occasionally there is a monument erected to a deceased governor, and now and then a new Georgia county is named in honor of one of them, but history indicates that it is the exception rather than the rule.

While those who were in the taste service with Governor Candler, and as a result of his appointments, are erecting in his honor this simple shaft at his former home, other friends have chosen his name for the new county which it is proposed to establish with Metter as the county seat, and to be formed from portions of Bulloch, Emanuel and Tattnall.

Although in common with every successful politician, he had his enemies, this double honor is indicative of the general esteem in which Governor Candler was held.

It is interesting, too, that the name Candler should have been selected for a new county in the southeast section of the state, whereas Governor Candler's home was in north Georgia. There is every indication that the people of Metter and the surrounding territory will succeed in establishing the justice of their claim to a new county before the coming legislature, and that Candler county will thus become a new and important political division of the state.

In the creation of new counties within the last ten years, only two have been named in honor of governors of Georgia—Stephens and Jenkins. Alexander H. Stephens was more than governor, and the honor came not alone for that reason. Governor Jenkins figured prominently in war history; he took the executive seal of the state to Canada just as the reconstruction period was about to begin. Governor Joe Brown, whose statue stands upon the capitol grounds, was also a confederate hero and United States senator.

The people of Metter believe that some recognition in the way of honor to memory should be given to those who have served Georgia as chief executive, and it is for this reason they have chosen the name of one who rendered a long list of distinguished services to his native state.

UNIQUE PLAN SUCCEEDS TO NAB BOOTLEGGERS

Tallapoosa, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—One of the smoothest pieces of blind tiger catching in the history of the city was pulled off here Saturday by County Sheriff Smith and Marshal Miller. Three boot-leggers were arrested and the others put to flight. The officers located the place where the transfers of liquor and money were being made. They put a ceiling in the old outhouse and secreted themselves above, and through a hole they could see the entire transaction. The men will be tried in mayor's court tomorrow.

COLORED AFFINITY LURED TO HIS DEATH

Madison, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Mose Jeems, Ike Robertson and Caff Carter, three negroes charged with the murder of Tom Perryman, another negro, have been caught and are now in jail in this city. Tom Perryman was killed several weeks ago in Mose Jeems' house.

It is said that Perryman had been too intimate with Mose Jeems' wife, and the three accused men lured him to the house, using whisky as a bait, got him into a back room and beat him to death with clubs. They took the body and carried it near a spring, not far from the house, where they hid it in some bushes.

It was found later, and the coroner's inquest could find no clue to the perpetrators of the crime. Later, Mary, the wife of Mose Jeems, who was in the house at the time the killing occurred, left everything away, and when the men were arrested they confessed to the killing.

TURPENTINE AND ROSIN FIRM DURING THE WEEK

Savannah, Ga., June 1.—Turpentine for the week was firm, closing yesterday at 36½, as against 37¼ to 37¾ last Saturday and 44 to 44½ for the corresponding day a year ago. Sales for the week were 4,762, as against 5,072 for the corresponding week last year. Receipts for the week were 5,765, as against 6,493 last year. Shipments for the week were 5,375, as against 6,387 last year. Stocks are 22,798, as against 26,756 last year. Stocks increased 190 during the week.

Rosin was firm during the week. Prices remained stationary. Sales for the week were 5, as against 13,940 last year. Receipts for the week were 15,147, as against 17,105 last year. Shipments were 3,582, as against 18,200 last year. Stocks are 87,625, as against 65,518 last year. Stocks increased 11,565 during the week.

MORGAN IS HARVESTING FINE CROP OF GRAIN

Madison, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Morgan county is harvesting a fine grain crop. A large crop of grain, both wheat and oats, was planted in the county last fall and spring, and the yield promises this year to be greater than for many years past.

The recent rains have brought cotton up in the county, and the prospects now are better than at any time this year.

Chautauqua for Madison.

Madison, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Beginning on June 13 and lasting one week, Madison will hold a Chautauqua. It promises to eclipse anything of its kind ever held in this city. The attractiveness is superb, many artists of the best talents will entertain the people. A large crowd is expected to be in attendance.

All arrangements have been practically completed.

MRS. SARAH H. FULLER DIED SUNDAY MORNING

Mrs. Sarah Horr Fuller, mother-in-law of Bishop Frederick D. Leete, died at an early hour Sunday morning at the family residence, 9 West Eleventh street, after an illness of only a few days.

Mrs. Fuller was 75 years of age, and was the wife of the Rev. Spencer R. Fuller, who was a prominent divine of New York. For the past year or so Mrs. Fuller had been in Atlanta, and in that time had won the love of scores.

A brief prayer service will be held at the residence this afternoon at 7:30 o'clock. The body will be carried to Watertown, N. Y., Tuesday morning, where it will be laid to rest.

Plant for Tallapoosa.

Tallapoosa, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Jackson Brothers Lumber company announce that they will build a new lumber re-milling plant in this city, to have a capacity of 25,000 feet of finished boards per day. The timber will be taken from the forests near here and Heflin, Ala., and partly finished in the woods. It will then be brought here, cut into boards and dried and finished for the market. A high grade of flooring will be a specialty.

COTTON SEED CRUSHERS REACH ATLANTIC BEACH

Over Two Hundred Present for Opening of the Convention Today.

Atlantic Beach, Fla., June 1.—(Special.)—Members of the Cotton Seed Crushers' association of Georgia, with their wives and families, have arrived for the ninth annual convention of this organization, which will be held here on Monday and Tuesday. Over 200 are in attendance, and the convention bids fair to be one of the most successful in the history of the association. Large delegations of crushers are in attendance from Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Athens and Albany and Augusta, and other cotton oil mill centers.

The opening session will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock, at which time the president, F. W. McKee, of Atlanta, will preside and speeches of welcome will be delivered on behalf of the city, to which responses will be made by the crushers. President McKee will deliver his annual address, which will be followed by that of Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, at Athens, Ga.

At the afternoon session, a paper will be read by Thomas C. Law, the well-known chemist of Atlanta, on "The Quality of Crude Oil," which will be followed by an address on "Proper Grading of Cotton Seed for Manufacturing Purposes," by H. C. Brown, of Augusta, Ga.

The association members arrived arrived Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, and have added much to the merriment of the hotel, whose opening took place on Saturday.

Fine Crop of Corn.

Thomasville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Over 7 feet high and still growing is the record made by the corn crop of J. B. Logan, planted on the place owned by W. A. Watt, about 2 miles from town. This corn is only eight weeks old, and it would be hard to find a field anywhere in more beautiful condition.

CONDITION OF CROPS IN CHATTOOGA BETTER

Lyerly, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—During the past few weeks the crop conditions have greatly improved and indications at present point to a fair crop while the young plants have been materially damaged as a result of the prolonged drought. Cotton is up to a fair stand and is being worked while young corn is in fine shape.

A Great Change in the Prices of Hand Bags

In the first place—and fix this firmly in your mind lest when you go to reading the prices below you should doubt it—the bags are just those shapes and leathers that you would buy were you out in search of one at regular price. The other kinds, those that are a bit shopworn and that are of last season's styles, for there are some of these included, are not listed below. They have been reduced to an absurd point.

The beauty and strength of the sale lie in the fine pin seal, walrus, goat, Morocco and suede bags with gun metal, gilt and nickel frames, lined richly with silks. There are about all shapes and sizes from the smallest fitted for cards and change only to the largest now in vogue, in black, red, tan, brown, green and blue.

So few are the limitations of this sale that it is like choosing from regular stock and paying half!

If you need a bag there could hardly be any alternative—attend this sale.

FIFTY YEARS OF PEACE.

A suggestion that ought to interest north and south equally is contained in the following extract from a Memorial day address delivered by Dr. George Petrie, of the Alabama Polytechnic institute:

> In two more years it will be half a century since our great war ended. Shall we let that date go by unnoticed? The trials and the perils of reconstruction are now over. We are one country at last, not only in name, but in spirit; and no section welcomes this coming of real peace and fraternal feeling more genuinely than we south. Would it not, then, be a fine thing if this semi-centennial could be made the occasion of a national celebration of the present good feeling between all sections of our country, and of the genuine reunion which has at last come?

Why not? A celebration of the semi-centennial of peace between the sections could be made an historic spectacle of world-wide interest and deep significance. The time is thoroughly ripe. The Blue and Gray reunion to be held on the field of Gettysburg in July is an indication of the trend. Arrangements are already made to bring together on the site of the battlefield the survivors of the conflict that really turned the tide of the civil war. The suggestion in this direction has been approved nationally with a unanimous voice. The suggestion to stage, two years hence, a celebration on a larger scale would be greeted with even greater enthusiasm.

There is another reason why such an anniversary should be observed. The decades that have elapsed since Appomattox have been even more ruthless with blue and gray than the terrors of war themselves. Month by month, year by year, the survivors are yielding to old age and disease. Most of the great figures on either side have already passed. Is it not especially fitting that the rank and file should be brought together before time shall have so decimated their numbers as to make an adequate showing impossible?

A reassembling on a huge scale of the survivors of stars and stripes and stars and bars, amid appropriate ceremonies, would mark the final renationalization of America with final and dramatic emphasis. Two years is none too long a time in which to arrange an event of such magnitude.

A NEEDED PENAL REFORM.

A. H. Ulm, executive secretary to Governor Brown, points out a flaw in our penal system regarding the removal of which there will be universal agreement. He shows that in case of conviction for misdemeanor the defendant, in many cases, is given the choice between a fine and a chaingang sentence. At the moment of passing sentence he may not have the amount of the fine or be able to get in communication with his friends or relatives. Later, and after he has served a portion of his sentence, he may secure the money, but there is no legal provision for him to pay the fine with deduction for the amount of term served. His only recourse is executive clemency.

Obviously, the system is faulty. Offenses that may be punished with a fine at the discretion of the court should also fall under such statute as will enable the convicted person later to pay his way out should his financial condition improve. Indeed, it is not difficult to understand how the present method may work to the positive creation of criminals. It may well happen that first offenders or persons convicted of comparatively trivial offenses will be transformed into chronic criminals. For not being able to command the amount of the fine at the time of their sentencing they are thrust into association with confirmed criminals. There is no guarantee that at the completion of their terms they will not emerge hardened law-breakers. This source of menace would be removed, or at least mitigated, if provision were made for subsequent paying of fines and release of prisoners.

As it is now, the law stigmatizes as a convict, clothed in stripes, the person unable to pay his fine, and that stigma is likely to remain a handicap throughout life. It lets off with a money penance the man with a price, making no provision for the no more guilty individual who may subsequently raise the amount of his fine. At best, this system is clumsy and unjust, in that it penalizes poverty. It is especially reprehensible when, as at present, it holds out no hope to the poverty-stricken offender of obtaining release after sentence, even though friends may subsequently raise the price of his fine.

CINCINNATI'S DISCOVERY.

The city of Cincinnati has learned how to walk. Not that Cincinnati is in its swaddling clothes or at all backward in other respects. But up to a few days ago the big Ohio town, in common with other American municipalities, Atlanta included, had been using the trolley and the auto to the practical exclusion of shank's mare. Then came a trolley strike that tied up the transportation system tight as a sailor's knot. As only a minority per cent of the populace own automobiles, the rest had to walk. The Enquirer makes the occasion the text for half a column epic—and it takes mighty rare provocation to drive The Enquirer into an editorial of that length.

Cincinnati's experience is going to be good for the legs, the digestions and the general health of the city. Of course, there are plenty of aches and pains at present in the city due to the unusual exercise, and the supply of arnica and liniment is seriously depleted. But these handicaps are only transitory. Soon the long-idle muscles will roll back into form and Cincinnati will find itself much the better in general well-being and ability to sleep o'nights than before the strike.

One of the greatest penalties for our phenomenal municipal development in America has been the steady discouragement of exercise. The extension of electrical transportation systems is what makes big cities possible, of course, but it has also operated to almost abolish walking. The rank and file of workers board a trolley near their dwellings, are whirled across town and get off within a few steps of the door of the factory or the office building. At the lunch hour the trolley either takes us home or the distance makes the downtown lunch imperative—in either event, exercise goes by the board.

Physicians bear witness that a large number of the complaints developed by city folk could have been warded off by walking, pursued systematically. But even the leisure or wealthy class that has time for this form of outdoor exercise, has not the inclination for it. Here again it takes the fresh air by auto riding, instead of hoofing it and turning loose cramped muscles and putting sluggish blood in circulation.

Of course with the ending of the strike Cincinnati will return to the trolleys. But it is probable that a few of the wise ones will sense the lesson of the past few days, and seize every opportunity to get out of dependence upon mechanical means of transportation. It would be well if urbanites in the country-at-large read wisdom from the experience.

AGAINST THE "CITY HIDEOUS."

One of the dominant tendencies of the times was illustrated the other day when representatives of sixteen states and municipalities met in New York to debate warfare against the "city hideous" and in behalf of the "city beautiful." They were addressed by Mayor Gaynor, who told them that while western communities had the advantage in being able to profit by the mistakes of the east, that the east was endeavoring to retrieve its errors.

That some of the mayor's ought to furnish a lesson to Atlanta. Already we are confronted by the penalties in building without regard to the future. We are having to undo that over again much of the municipal construction of yesterday, for the simple reason that we lacked foresight. The principle applies to streets, as well as to buildings, to material as to abstract ideals. And only foresight because we did not employ competent specialists to survey our possibilities and our future and prescribe our needs.

Everywhere throughout the nation the campaign on is between the city hideous and the city beautiful, and the latter is winning. Men are seeing that, in the long run, it is cheaper to build enduringly and with pleasing effects, than with shoddy material and in slap-dash style for the moment. They are seeing that construction which is based on saving a penny for the moment is apt to result in costing a dollar in the future. The cry is for economy, but it is also against parsimony.

In this connection it is encouraging to note that there is already beginning, under the auspices of the chamber of commerce, a survey of Atlanta which shall include its social as well as its material phases. We need to know our delinquencies in taking care of people as well as our delinquencies in construction and government.

We need, above all, as The Constitution has several times insisted, a definite city plan to the execution of which we can work with intelligence and efficiency. It may be many years before all the details of the plan are materialized. But we would, in the meantime, know that every dollar we spend is going to some concrete end, and that when the last details have been completed we will have a city that is built, symmetrically, "for keeps."

The formation of such a plan and its adoption would be Atlanta's first essential step toward the creation of a real "city beautiful."

New News of Yesterday

The Mystery Connected With a Dispatch From Lincoln.

By E. J. EDWARDS.
(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

The late Charles Hebard, who was one of the pioneer lumber manufacturers of the upper peninsula of Michigan, and was for many years a great influence as a trustee of the University of Michigan, entertained me at his place in upper Michigan in the summer of 1882. His great mills were nearly opposite the location of the Calumet and Hecla copper mines. A few miles to the east were the great iron mines of upper Michigan.

Mr. Hebard took me upon a visit to these mines after having shown me some of the wonders of the Calumet and Hecla mines.

"Some time ago," Mr. Hebard said, "I was chatting with my business associate, Mr. Smith, whose firm gained a world-wide reputation as manufacturers of revolvers, and whose plant is at Springfield, Mass. He was speaking of the quality that is in these northern Michigan iron ores, which, as I understood it, made these ores of value in the manufacture of gun metal.

"Mr. Smith then said to me that there were only a few persons in the United States who, at the time of the civil war, knew why Abraham S. Hewitt, of New York city, went to England and spent several months there. I happened to know why Mr. Hewitt went to England. It was a well-kept secret, but it was one which was confidentially imparted to me for business reasons.

"At the beginning of the civil war we did not have any satisfactory method of making the gun metal which was used in the manufacture of the best kind of guns.

"You know that at Springfield the government had one of its large arsenals, in which a great many thousand guns were manufactured for the army. But in the first year or two of the war these guns were found to be much inferior to the muskets and rifles which were manufactured in England.

"President Lincoln and his secretary of war, Mr. Stanton, were anxious that the American arsenals should know how to manufacture this gun metal. The only way to find out was to send somebody to England who would be quick enough and competent enough to learn this science.

"Abram S. Hewitt, who had been associated with his brother-in-law, Edward Cooper, in iron manufacturing, and who was known to be a man of very high scientific attainments, was just the man, so Secretary Stanton was informed, to undertake this work.

"Thereupon, President Lincoln himself sent a telegram to Mr. Hewitt requesting him to go to Washington on a confidential matter of great importance. Mr. Hewitt did go to Washington and found out what the president and secretary of war had to say. He consented to undertake the somewhat delicate mission. He went to England early in 1862. He stayed there long enough to learn all the details of the process for making gun metal. When he returned to the United States he placed his information in the hands of the secretary of war. I have understood that Mr. Hewitt did not take any compensation for this service, for he felt that he was only too glad to contribute something to the cause of the union.

"Mr. Hewitt's visit to England on this secret mission gave to the United States its opportunity to match the southern lead in manufacture of guns such as muskets and rifles.

"It was a curious supplementary anecdote which I was told recently of a peculiar feature of Mr. Hewitt's mission.

"It appears that some time after Mr. Hewitt's death, in 1902, a gentleman—a man of venerable years—informed members of Mr. Hewitt's family that he had in his possession an original telegraphic dispatch from President Lincoln summoning Mr. Hewitt to Washington, in 1862, upon a confidential matter. That explains something which had always been a mystery to Mr. Hewitt, for when he called upon President Lincoln he learned that the latter, having summoned him by one telegram which was not answered, sent a second dispatch in such a way that it would be sure to get into Mr. Hewitt's hands. What had become of that first dispatch neither the president nor Mr. Hewitt ever knew, nor is it now known how it came into the hands of the gentleman who stated to members of Mr. Hewitt's family that he had in his possession a telegraphic dispatch from President Lincoln sent in 1862 to Abram S. Hewitt."

The Tignall Railroad.

Editor Constitution: The Elberton-Eastern railroad is a standard short line from Elberton to Tignall ("Little Atlanta"), Ga. While the project is being prosecuted by northern capital, the constituency, properly speaking, consists of local financiers as well as common citizens. The board of directors is largely constituted of those local gentlemen.

As to the sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) in notes, their renewal, etc., I am authorized to say the amount is seventy-five thousand dollars ($75,000); the notes for which will show (as I have seen them) that the only consideration therefor are that the railroad shall run from Elberton to Tignall, Ga., shall be in operation by certain prescribed dates, etc., the first of which are dated June, 1913.

On account of inclement weather affecting the railroad and unsatisfactory crops of the subscribers, it was thought proper and right that the railroad and subscribers, jointly, extend both time of completion of the road and maturity of said notes until this fall, which concession was satisfactorily made. However, the railroad will be in operation by June 25.

The road is not running against time in order to collect $60,000," as is obvious in the above, but is rushing toward an old-fashioned Georgia barbecue which will be excitedly awaiting them as a slight token of appreciation from all the citizens for its splendid work. I am glad to say, also, that the money will be forthcoming when due.

I am authorized to say, further, for the project so surely and speedily materializing, there is absolutely no plan or arrangement for the continuation of the road from Tignall to any point east or south, and, until future developments, Tignall is positively the terminus.

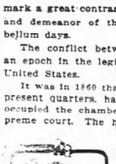
Gossip Caught in Corridors Of the National Capitol

By John Corrigan, Jr.



John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, June 1.—(Special.)—Congress has undergone many changes which mark a great contrast in the customs, habits and demeanor of the members since antebellum days.

The conflict between the states marked an epoch in the legislative existence of the United States.

It was in 1860 that the senate took up its present quarters, having prior to that time occupied the chamber now used by the supreme court. The house of representatives up to about the time the war began met in what is now known as statuary hall, where a brass star marks the seat of John Quincy Adams, in which he was overtaken by the illness which led to his death shortly after in a room nearby.

The senate in those days was exceedingly dull and decorous. It is still at times. But then it assumed much more dignity and impressive importance than it does in these times. The great political giants who were members of the upper house before the war had lofty notions of their great importance, and the weighty dignity with which each of them was typified by what someone called the "gloomy grandeur" of Charles Sumner. A set speech in the days before the war was a carefully staged affair, and the oratory in the senate, while of the highest order, was pompous in the extreme.

Costume Oozed With Dignity.

The costume worn by the senators went with the part they played. It consisted of a swallowtail coat of antique pattern, accompanied by trousers that buttoned up the side. This costume fairly oozed with dignity, and its retention was valiantly fought for by some of the senators even after the war.

But, in spite of all this, after the war the traditional dignity of the members of the great American house of lords underwent marked impairment, though the process was gradual. Roscoe Conkling and a few others, doing their best to stem the tide of legislative modernism, upheld for a while the memory of an earlier epoch, the last surviving exemplar of which was John James Ingalls of Kansas.

The senator of today resembles little the senator of those old days, either in appearance or personal habits. He cultivates a cordial and hail-fellow-well-met manner, and his dress in most instances is that of the ordinary business man. Dolph of Oregon on more than one occasion gave somewhat of a shock to the senate by dispensing with his collar in the warm weather, which he was able to do because he had an exceptionally profuse set of whiskers. Not long after this Blackburn of Kentucky took another whack at senatorial dignity by appearing in a suit of "slave cloth"—a light gray homespun which got its name from the fact that slaves in the south before the war used to wear it. It is said that a senator within the last half a dozen years has actually been known to take off his shoes and put his stockinged feet on his desk. Such an act as this in the good old days would have resulted in such criticism that a duel with "hoss-pistols," or weapons as deadly, would have followed.

They Took Snuff.

It was the custom, and a habit to which the majority were addicted in the old days, to take snuff, and for the benefit of the users two small lacquered snuffboxes were screwed on a ledge on either side of the vice president's dais. The snuff was bought by the sergeant-at-arms, and the boxes regularly replenished twice every week, the freshness of the contents being a matter of importance. Allen G. Thurman, in later years, was a great snuff-taker. He would help himself to a pinch from one of these boxes, return to his desk, and produce a large red bandanna handkerchief (afterwards a political emblem when he ran for vice president), and then sneeze several times violently and blow a blast that would of a necessity interrupt any proceedings of the senate for the time. Other traditions have been wiped out, but the snuffboxes remain, and can be seen today, though it has been a long time since they have been put to use, the last member of the upper house to avail himself of their contents being Carter of Montana.

Another tradition of the senate which has been shattered and broken down by the onward march of progress and by radical and iconoclastic members is the ancient rule or custom which forbade a new senator to make a speech on any subject whatever. McConnell of Idaho contributed a brick at this old and honored rule, to begin with, when he was elected or appointed for just one year. He made a speech, and after it was over an older senator came to him kindly but gravely: "You ought not to do such a thing. It is not considered proper for anybody to speak in the senate until he has served two years."

His Only Chance.

"The deuce you say," said McConnell. "Not on your life; I have only one year to serve, and I don't propose to sit here all that time without saying a word."

Now a senator who has been in that body only a month takes as active a part in the debate as any member, no matter how long his service, if he desires to do so.

In the good old times, it is said that gambling houses were run openly in Washington, and derived a good deal of their patronage from the members of congress. One of the attractions offered was a nightly supper of luxurious description, with canvas-back ducks and terrapin prepared as few cooks know how to prepare them in this country.

One thing which has contributed to the changes in congress is the abolition of dueling. In the days before the war an honorable gentleman could not call another honorable gentleman a liar or a skunk or a scallawag or any such name with impunity. He would immediately be called upon to prove the allegation with some deadly weapon. One of the most interesting encounters of this kind took place between Henry Clay and John Randolph.

There had been bad blood between these two men for some time. Randolph disliked Clay, and one day in 1826 he alluded to the intimacy between Clay and John Quincy Adams (the former being at that time secretary of state) as "a union of the blackguard and the Puritan." This remark, made on the floor of the senate, elicited a prompt challenge from Clay, and the resulting duel was fought at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of April 8, three miles from Washington. Randolph appeared on the field in a flannel dressing gown.

In the exchange of shots, Randolph having accidentally fired his pistol while assuming his position, Clay sent a bullet through the dressing gown, and Randolph threw away his fire. The damage done by this notable encounter was one hole in the dressing gown.

Others were not so fortunate, however, many prominent men having been seriously wounded and some killed outright in the duels engaged in over politics. One famous fight that created a world of ridicule by the newspapers of those days was between Senator Gwin of California and Representative McCorkle from the same state. Three shots were exchanged with rifles, but the only sufferer was a mule, which was killed by one of the badly-directed rifles.

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON
The Famous Prose Poet

A PENT-UP UTICA.

"I called at old Doolittle's house a while ago," remarked the low-browed man, "and he was busy smashing his telephone with an ax, and dancing on the pieces. I threw a bucket of water over him to cool him down, and when he regained his faculties he said he couldn't remember when anything did him so much good as the smashing of that telephone. He had been trying to call up Quackenbush all afternoon, and every time a silvery voice told him the line was busy."

"And so he flew into a senseless rage, and acted like a brute beast," said the professor. "A man of his years should be ashamed of himself for flying into such a foolish and futile passion."

"There's a good deal of human nature about old Doolittle," continued the low-browed man, "and I never saw a brute beast busting a telephone with an ax. I sympathized with him completely. I knew just how he felt, and how great a relief it was to run amuck. You don't make allowances for human nature, having none of it yourself, professor. You sit around here among your books dreaming pipe-dreams, and nothing ever barks your shins or stubs your toe. You don't know what trouble is. If you did have a trouble, you'd write an essay about it for the North American Review. We're not all built that way. Some of us have a lot of the old Adam in us, and when things go wrong we want to do as much damage as possible. But the opportunities for doing damage are mighty small. There are so many laws and ukases and by-laws that a man can't kick his own hat without running the risk of being sent to Siberia.

"Why, I know a good, law-abiding citizen who got into trouble for lamming his own cow with a fence-board. When things went wrong he found great relief in that. The cow didn't mind it in the least, for her hide was made of sole leather, and she was used to it. Yet the officious neighbors interfered and had him prosecuted, and people even wrote letters to the newspapers about it. Some people laughed at the idea of this excellent citizen relieving his mind by chastising his cow, and the serious-minded guys, who never make allowances for human nature, and don't understand it, wrote ringing communications rebuking them with great bitterness, saying there was nothing humorous in cruelty to animals. Deliver us from the serious-minded geek, if he makes it plain that human nature is a riddle he can't guess.

"Every day people are doing crazy and foolish things because they are so hedged about with laws that they're afraid to do the proper and natural thing. We cultivate a cordial and hail-fellow-well-met manner, and his dress in most instances is that of the ordinary business man. Dolph of Oregon on more than one occasion gave somewhat of a shock to the senate by dispensing with his collar in the warm weather, which he was able to do because he had an exceptionally profuse set of whiskers. Not long after this Blackburn of Kentucky took another whack at senatorial dignity by appearing in a suit of "slave cloth"—a light gray homespun which got its name from the fact that slaves in the south before the war used to wear it. It is said that a senator within the last half a dozen years has actually been known to take off his shoes and put his stockinged feet on his desk. Such an act as this in the good old days would have resulted in such criticism that a duel with "hoss-pistols," or weapons as deadly, would have followed.

They Took Snuff.

It was the custom, and a habit to which the majority were addicted in the old days, to take snuff, and for the benefit of the users two small lacquered snuffboxes were screwed on a ledge on either side of the vice president's dais. The snuff was bought by the sergeant-at-arms, and the boxes regularly replenished twice every week, the freshness of the contents being a matter of importance. Allen G. Thurman, in later years, was a great snuff-taker. He would help himself to a pinch from one of these boxes, return to his desk, and produce a large red bandanna handkerchief (afterwards a political emblem when he ran for vice president), and then sneeze several times violently and blow a blast that would of a necessity interrupt any proceedings of the senate for the time. Other traditions have been wiped out, but the snuffboxes remain, and can be seen today, though it has been a long time since they have been put to use, the last member of the upper house to avail himself of their contents being Carter of Montana.

The Veterans March At Chattanooga

The sun shone bright, all nature smiled,
As blared the trumpet's loud acclaim;
Cheerings and "vivas" rent the air,
As on the vet'ran columns came.

In slow procession moved along
The remnant of the "thin gray lines"—
They fought like heroes, in their might
At Bull Run, Malvern, Seven Pines.

Huzzah! huzzah! make way, make way!
Honor the Brave! all honor's due;
They gave their wealth, their strength, their blood,—
They fought for laurels, found but rue.

But not for laurels only,—honor, right,
Wives, children, sisters, mothers brave
Who gave their sons, sat down and wept
When one had found a soldier's grave.

March on, Vet'rans! strew their way
With flowers culled from battle-plain,
Enriched with many a hero's blood,
Giving their hugs a brighter stain.

"Halt!" comes the kind command. "Halt; halt!"
Those limbs are weary now, and slow;
They must have pause; labored their breath,
Remembering those dark days of woe.

Ah! soon, full soon, like ripened grain
Before Time's scythe, they'll fall in sheaves;
No more perchance, they'll meet again
Nor don anew the warrior's greaves.

Then cheer! shout till your throats are dry!
Their honor, glory, praise, shall last;
Your voices falter; tears in ev'ry eye!—
The "Immortal Band" shall soon have passed.

DECATUR HOME-COMING WILL BE GREAT EVENT

Board of Trade Smoker Will Be Crowning Feature of the Celebration.

Combining the Decatur home-coming with the celebration of Jefferson Davis' birthday, Tuesday will be a gala day in Decatur, and the climax of the festivities will be the board of trade smoker, which will be held in the courthouse at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

"Co-operating with the board of trade in the planning of the program and entertainment are the Agnes Lee Scott chaper of the United Daughters of the confederacy, and the Clement A. Evans Camp of the United Confederate Veterans.

W. J. Dabney, president of the Decatur board of trade, will preside over the day's celebration, and will introduce the speakers. Forrest Adair will deliver one of the feature addresses of the day on "Good Roads and How to Build Them," a subject which will be of great interest to Decatur citizens, who, since the first of the year, have set out to build $50,000 worth of roads. The speakers' program will include the following addresses:

Address of Welcome—J. A. Mongomery, mayor, Decatur.

"Value of a Board Trade to a Community"—Wilmer L. Moore, president Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

"Outside View of Work of Decatur Board of Trade"—R. W. Parker, mayor of Madison, Ga.

"Co-operation Between the Towns of DeKalb County"—R. F. Gillman, mayor of Kirkwood.

"Duties of a Secretary of a Board of Trade"—Walter G. Cooper, secretary Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

"Relation of Decatur to DeKalb County"—Alonzo M. Field, representative from DeKalb county in Georgia legislature.

"Good Roads and How to Get Them"—Forrest Adair.

"State Chamber of Commerce"—C. J. Haden.

A good band of music will be on hand, and a good supper has been provided.

Tickets to the smoker will be sold to the members of the board for $1 each and every member is privileged to buy additional tickets at the same price for any friends he may desire to have present.

Members are urged to send in their names at once to Secretary Ramspeck, who may be reached by Bell phone, Decatur 118.

"This will be the greatest event in the history of the board of trade," said W. J. Dabney, its president, who is enthusiastic over the support which is being given Decatur's home-coming smoker.

NEW METHOD PROPOSED TO LIMIT IMMIGRATION

Washington, June 1.—An attempt to eliminate immigration from southern European and Asiatic countries, without the use of the literacy test, upon which President Taft placed his disapproval in the last session of congress, is embodied in a bill to be introduced in the senate tomorrow by Senator Dillingham, joint author of the Burnett-Dillingham bill vetoed by President Taft.

Senator Dillingham's bill will propose a restriction upon the number of immigrants from each country, to be fixed at 10 per cent from the number of persons of similar nationality who were also residents of the United States at the time of the last census. The senator estimates that his new method of limiting immigration would greatly reduce the annual influx from Italy, Austria-Hungary, Greece and Turkey, and would at the same time allow an increase in the number of immigrants who might enter from Germany, Great Britain, Sweden and Norway and all countries of northern and western Europe.

A statement issued tonight from the office of the commissioner general of immigration says the Dillingham bill "scarcely excludes any except those afflicted with serious mental or physical defects," and has but little effect in reducing the great influx of aliens.

"Notwithstanding the mandatory provisions of the law," said the statement, "it has been difficult in the past to deport even when aliens are mentally or physically defective. It has become customary for friends or philanthropic societies to appeal in behalf of rejected aliens, and in taking such appeals little or no consideration is given to the merits of the case.

"During the last fiscal year, the statement added, 1,031,250 aliens applied for admission, and only 1 per cent were excluded for all causes, while the indications were that an even greater number would be admitted this year.

WINDER URGES CLAIM FOR A NEW COUNTY

Town Located in Three Counties and in Two Congressional Districts.

Probably there is not another town in the United States situated like Winder, Ga., which is located in three counties, three senatorial districts and two congressional districts. The only other complication which could possibly be added to it would be to run a state line through it and put it in two states.

These facts constitute the basis of the general popularity over Georgia of Winder's claim for a new county which will be urged before the legislature at its coming session.

The point at which the county lines of Jackson, Gwinnett and Walton counties meet, is within 500 feet of the center of Winder, a thriving city of 2,000 population. The eastern side of Athens street, running through Winder, is in Jackson county, the western side is in Gwinnett. Residents on Athens street can sit on their front porches and talk to each other, but they must attend different courts which are more than 30 miles apart, and they must vote in different precincts for different candidates. In another part of the town the people travel 16 miles to Monroe, the county seat of Walton, and vote for still different legislators and senators.

Jackson county is in the thirty-third senatorial district, Gwinnett is in the thirty-fourth, and Walton in the twenty-seventh; so that Winder has representing it in the legislature three members of the lower house and three of the upper. This would look like strong representation, but as a matter of fact the representatives usually come from remote sections of the counties in question, and Winder, it is said, suffers accordingly.

Jackson and Gwinnett are in the ninth congressional district, while Walton is in the eighth. Residents of Winder, therefore, vote for two congressmen. Three separate polling places have to be set up within Winder's city limits every time there is an election. There's only one exception to this and that is when they elect a mayor.

This is the situation which has molded the opinion, which is said to be general over the state, that Winder has about the best claim for the establishment of a new county of any town in the state. For years Winder has been trying to secure recognition of its claim, but the rest of the state did not appear to be interested, chiefly because it was not aware of these conditions. Now that they are becoming more generally known public opinion is taking a hand, and the belief is the Winder proposition will go through the coming legislature with comparatively little difficulty.

ATLANTA LAW SCHOOL HAS DEBATE TONIGHT

Competition for Robt. C. Alston Prize Will Be Conducted Tuesday.

The Atlanta Law School commencement program opens tonight with the prize debate for the Hamilton Douglas medal. The question is: "Resolved, That capital punishment should be abolished."

The speakers will be Pierce Burns, R. E. Lee Cone, Samuel Castleton, W. A. Hassell, J. R. McClelland, J. Samuel Highsmith, Franklin S. Chalmers, Brooks B. Patterson and Edward J. Grossman. John M. Owens, of the senior class, will preside over the debate, and the judges will be Mrs. Hamilton Douglas, Hon. Joseph H. Lumpkin, the supreme court, and Thomas Connally.

Before the contest tonight, the names of the successful candidates for graduation will be announced by the faculty. The competition for the Robert Alston prize—a gold and a silver medal for the two best papers on the Civil Rights Cases, will close tonight at 6 o'clock, when every thesis must be on file in the dean's office. Tuesday night the law school orators will compete for the faculty prize in oratory, and they will speak in the following order: R. E. Lee Cone, DuPont Hood, Samuel M. Castleton, George Northcutt, J. Wood, Pierce Burns, Harry B. Terrell, Allen A. Bowda, Leonard J. Grossman, J. B. King, Richard H. Gordon and Wilhelm Hassell.

Elaborate plans for commencement night are under way. Graduation will be Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Grand opera house. The principal address will be delivered by Hon. W. A. Covington, of Columbus.

The banquet at the University club will be the climax of two weeks of examinations and prize contests, and some of the prize winners will be heard from at that time. Last Saturday the faculty selected D. H. Foster for valedictorian of the senior class. This honor is awarded every year to the best all-round student, and general excellence, not the highest marks, is the determining factor.

SERVICE IS ORGANIZED TO HELP THE FARMERS

Washington, June 1.—The "Rural Organization Service," a new branch of the department of agriculture which includes a division of markets as one of its principal activities, will begin actual operation tomorrow with the arrival of Dr. Thomas N. Carver, of Harvard university, selected some time ago to head the service. Announcement was made today that two of Dr. Carver's assistants will be Dr. Carl W. Thompson, of Minnesota, who has been making studies in that state of rural social and economic conditions, and E. R. Goddard, who has been studying farm management in Ohio. Dr. Carver has been here for a number of conferences in the past few months, but comes now to start the new work, having just finished his teaching at Harvard.

The department announced today that the efforts to study the farmers' needs and then meet them would fall into three main groups. There will be "surveys" to get at the basic facts regarding various kinds of organized rural agencies that already have been tried, to discover how and why they are succeeding; there will be investigations in certain regional units and among certain kinds of agricultural interests to discover the reasons for existing rural conditions, and then certain units of territory will be selected in which to make demonstrations and experiments with schemes designed to improve the farmers' financial, physical and social condition.

ANSLEY HOTEL TO BE ONE OF VERY BEST

Experienced Men Selected for Each Department in Anticipation of Big Opening June 16.

The working force for the Ansley, one of the south's finest hotels, now in course of construction, has been announced by Manager J. F. Letton. They are selected from the ranks of leading southern hotel employees, and will begin duty on the opening date of the new century hotel.

Together with the hotels to which they were connected heretofore, the following is the list:

Charles H. Lee, formerly of the Exchange hotel, Montgomery, Ala., assistant manager; George A. Ruggles, formerly of the Hotel Galvez, Galveston, Texas, auditor; A. H. Chapman, formerly of the Great Southern hotel, Meridian, Miss., room clerk; J. F. de Jannette, formerly of the Marion hotel, Atlanta, room clerk; A. B. Montgomery, formerly of the Cherokee, Rome, Ga., cashier clerk; Frank T. Reynolds, publicity bureau; Frank W. Byrnes, formerly of the Marion, Little Rock, Ark., manager of department of baggage and transportation; E. H. Weston, formerly of Chicago and St. Louis, superintendent of internal department; W. Wallace Cowan, formerly of Chicago, steward; Leo Alsup, formerly of the Galvez, Galveston, assistant steward; Robert Belfoe, formerly of the St. Anthony, San Antonio, head waiter; Mrs. E. J. Scott, formerly of the Patton, Chattanooga, housekeeper; Charles A. Schmidt, formerly of the Henry Watterson, Louisville, chief engineer.

Opening Day Banquet.

With a banquet and elaborate program of entertainment, the doors of the Ansley will be thrown open on the 16th. Work on the structure is being rushed, and already furnishings are being installed in the rooms. Most of the mechanical equipment is ready for operation, and the bulk of the work to be done is in the finishing touches to be put to the office and lobby floor.

The ranges and kitchen apparatus have been installed, the rathskeller is completed, and the huge ventilating process, the most modern of its kind in the country, has been set in motion. The combination convention hall and ballroom, located on the eleventh floor, with a seating capacity of 600, is ready for occupancy, and all the bedrooms are ready for service.

Lobby Decorations.

A chief feature of the new hotel is to be its lobby. It will be embellished with rich paintings and decorations of several painters. Each of the paintings is to represent an historical event in the history of Georgia. The first panel of the mural decoration is to be a life-size painting of the treaty between General Oglethorpe and Tomichichi, on May 21, 1733. The second will be a painting of John Wesley teaching the Indians under the oaks of St. Simons. The third will represent the burning of the Yazoo fraud papers at the court house in Jefferson county.

On the lobby flooring, in the space between the pretty Carara marble wainscot and the ceiling beneath the mezzanine, will be a number of canvas paintings of the scenic views of the state, including Tallulah Falls, local park views, Stone Mountain and Druid Hills.

In architectural design and in mural paintings, the dining room will equal the lobby. The famous Italian gardens are to be the subjects of paintings in this room, including such show places as the Vatican gardens, the garden of Villa Borghese, the garden of Villa Lante, the Hercules Fountain and a scene in Venice.

The scheme of ornamentation for the walls and ceiling of the rathskeller will also be local. It will be called the College Inn, and will be decorated with paintings of the seals of the principal colleges of the state. Local subjects for decoration will also be used in the writing room, including the coat-of-arms of the city of Atlanta and the state of Georgia.

RICHES LYING ALONG THE WAYSIDE OF LIFE

Dr. Bricker Says Greatest Blessings Come From the Little Things.

That the riches of our lives are not found in goals or upon mountain peaks of achievement, but along the wayside, was the chief thought presented by Dr. E. G. Bricker at the First Christian church yesterday morning. The preacher's theme was "Wayfarers and Guests." He drew his lesson from the unexpected meeting of the disciples with the risen Lord on their walk to Emmaus as described in the gospel of Luke. The text was found in part:

"The riches of our lives are not found at goals or upon summits of achievement. They are found by the wayside, and they are gathered by us as we go along each day. What we gain as we go is of more value than what we shall gain when we reach our goal. It is while we are on our way that the things of supreme value and of supreme importance come to us. Life is always trying to teach us this and we are always turning a deaf ear to the lesson. Sir Launfal, as you remember, starts out upon a long, long journey, in search of the Holy Grail. He finds it the first day out, but he did not know it, because his eyes were fixed upon the distant goal, the far horizon. The good Samaritan, as he journeyed to some goal that lay away from Jericho, had no chance to look around him on the wayside, and saw a chance to do a deed of immortal love. Simon of Syrene, going into Jerusalem, intent upon a business venture, saw a chance to bear the cross of Jesus, and thus attained unto the summit of human privilege.

"On our way to Emmaus, ah, what uplifting and beautiful ideals come to us sometimes, to disunify us with our poor lives and thrill us with their possibilities of greatness and goodness. What longings and what visions of a life possible to us do come into our hearts sometimes on our way to Emmaus! And they make us dissatisfied with what we have done, and we cry unto ourselves, 'Oh, if only I could be good; I wish I could be useful; I wish I were a better man or a better woman.' And our hearts burn within us as these beautiful visions appear to us. But what is the use of them if we do not let them abide with us? *It is God's part to send us these messen*gers of light and life; it is ours to appropiate them, to embody them in our lives."

Money in Collards.

Thomasville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) Over in Grady county the collard seed industry is taking on large proportions, and the crop this season is expected to be the largest ever gathered there. Many of the farmers have gone into the growing of these collards for the money to be made from the sale of the seed, though most of them have a dash of collard "greens," and it is said that the business has reached a magnitude that few realize.

Picture Film Causes Fire.

Hickman, Ky., June 1.—Fire originating in a moving picture theater destroyed six frame store buildings and several dwelling houses here late last night. The loss is estimated at $40,000. The ignition of a picture film started the blaze, which spread rapidly. All of those attending the exhibition were negroes, and escaped without injury.

GOVERNMENT FIGURES ON COTTON CONDITION

Today's Report Will Take Crop Down to May 25—Much Speculation About Report.

New Orleans, June 1.—The local cotton market this week will probably start off in an unsettled way because of the condition report by the government tomorrow and the holiday Tuesday. To all appearances the market is fairly well steadied in preparation for the condition figures and, because of the adjournment Tuesday, it is likely that no great amount of fresh trading will be attempted on the opening session.

The condition report will be issued at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, and will take the crop down to May 25. This is the first condition report of the season, and is not regarded as of any great importance because it is generally considered that May 25 is altogether too early a date on which to draw conclusions of any value. At the same time, it has caused rather more speculative comment than usual this year, and any departures from expectations will probably cause price fluctuations one way or the other.

An opinion stood at the end of the week the trade was looking for figures around 82 to 83 per cent of the normal. Some bears put out estimates as high as 85, and some bulls did not believe that the ten-year average of 79.9 would be exceeded. Few traders, even those who entertained extremely bullish views of the crop, expected as low a report as that made last year, when the percentage was put at 78.8. On the other hand, only a comparatively few bears expected the figures to equal the condition of two years ago, when it was 87.8. It is likely that a report under 82 would cause an advance, while figures over the level would cause a decline.

After the condition report and the holiday the trade will probably go to studying the question of acreage more deeply than ever. The tendency of late has been to increase estimates in this direction and to place the increase in area planted up around 5 per cent. A short time ago the average trader was inclined to put it around 3 per cent. Opinions concerning acreage may grow more positive this week and have some effect on prices.

SPALDING PREPARING FOR ELABORATE FAIR

Griffin, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Spalding county is planning and preparing for the most elaborate county fair ever held in the state. The former fairs of the county have been excellent, but this one will eclipse any previous ones. A big sum of money is being spent enlarging and improving the fair grounds and buildings, and attractive prizes have been offered for the best displays and records made in various lines of farm work.

A 150-page catalogue of the fair has been printed and is now being put into the hands of every farmer in the county, as well as some adjoining communities. In the catalogue is listed a description of every premium offered in the various departments of the fair, including the agricultural, live stock, woman's work, poultry, corn club and racing departments.

A specially attractive feature of this year's fair will be the fast racing that will be introduced. The race track is to be regraded and enlarged, making the fastest time possible.

City Court Convenes.

Griffin, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—The city court, presided over by Judge Frank Flynt, will convene in regular session Monday morning. A very heavy docket of both criminal and civil cases awaits the action of the court. In the jail are some twenty-five or thirty prisoners, some of whom are charged with various offenses. In view of the fact that the farmers of the county are quite busy just now with farm work, it is probable that Judge Flynt will hold court only one day, allowing a great deal of the business to go over till a more convenient time.

WHY YOU SHOULD GET A

KODAK

Because kodaking is decidedly the most popular and universal amusement in the world. Years ago kodaking was a fad, and the owner of a kodak was called a "kodak fiend." Nowadays everybody kodaks. A kodak is a positive necessity to round out any kind of pleasure. Picnics, outings, vacations, etc., are comparatively dull without a kodak. Kodak pictures (snapshots) are a permanent record of the most enjoyable moments in your life—the best possible argument in favor of a kodak. Then, they are easy to operate; a mere child can handle one successfully. The price—well, that should be the least of your troubles when you can get a practical little Brownie for $1, $2, $3, $4 and $5. Larger kodaks $5 up to $65. Send for catalog and new finishing price list.

The Housewives of the Nation.

A thinking writer observes that "the housewives of America are engaged in one of the most active trades of the day—housekeeping."

Solid sense in that remark. But how many thinking advertisers—the small merchants in any community—study this fact deeply, analytically with a view to fitting it to their businesses—so increasing their trade with the housewives?

The home is the backbone of every community; the very foundation of this nation. And nearly every home has a feminine head.

Housekeeping in the large cities is becoming more and more a business science; in the smaller towns it is being lifted out of the sphere of drudgery.

And it is advertising that has done so much for the housewives. Advertising brings to their doors the things that lessen the drudgery and make housekeeping a pleasure.

Read the advertisements in THE CONSTITUTION, almost any day, and you will read of labor-saving devices for the household.

Appeal to the Housewife, Mr. Storekeeper, and you will make no mistake. SHE is a power in this land.

Hot Pitchers' Battle Goes Wrong

EDITED BY
Dick Jemison

WHIFFS

Who's the Jinx?

THE SALLY League is making a noble fight against big odds. It looks like someone has it in for the fast little circuit. A week after the season opened, the Macon grandstand burned down. A couple of weeks ago, the Albany stand followed suit. Saturday night, Charleston had the misfortune of her sister cities.

Needed the Pinch.

THE CRACKERS needed the old pinch swat Sunday. That's the way it goes. When the team gets good pitching, the hitting and run getting goes bad. Cap Whitey's slump with the willow has hurt more than any other one thing. His wallops were always timely, and Sunday he had three chances to drive in runs, but failed on each occasion. However, he'll come through with the binales shortly, and when he does, we'll win a lot more ball games.

Not Discouraged.

IF DETERMINATION will win the pennant, the Crackers romp home. There is not a man in the bunch that has quit. Harry Welchonce spoke the sentiment of the entire bunch Saturday afternoon in the clubhouse during the storm, when he said: "Things are breaking badly for us. It looks like our errors are more costly than the other fellows' Every little 'break' goes to the other fellow. A bad play by one of our men costs a couple of runs. Let the other fellow make the same play and it always happens when no one is on base, or a double play following saves things. But things cannot break this way all the time. It's likely to turn most any day. We've got the club, we all know it, and we're going to win a lot of ball games before this race is over. Now watch us and see if we don't."

Billy Optimistic.

"GIVE ME Mobile's pitchers and I'd be so far ahead that the league would have to play two seasons to make any money. And I'm going to get good pitchers soon. The man I've got hasn't not pitched such bad ball lately, but it looks like a misplay behind them every time he goes in. It hurts the most a couple of hits, and, sing, goes the old ball game. I've got the best ball club in the league outside of the pitchers, and I am going to have the best team including the pitchers before very long, too."

Only Broke Even.

THE CRACKERS made 103 hits and scored 62 runs, while the opposition made 83 hits and scored 47 runs in the twelve games just completed on the home lot, yet the team was only able to break even on the home stay, proving conclusively that the fault lays only with the defensive end of the game, principally pitchers.

Is Worried.

BILL BAILEY is worried over his batting slump. "Hells right in my groove, but I was making a mile this season are fooling me badly this year," said Harry Saturday, "and I am hitting badly at the plate, hitting at some bad balls. I have tried several ways to correct this, but as yet I have not been successful. Just keep right in there trying, Bill, and they'll break for you before long. Some fielder will be out of position one of these days and then you'll get going. The same applies to the rest of the team. The players get out of their slump, even bad pitchers won't keep the Crackers from winning."

Blind as a Bat.

THE ITEM, at New Orleans, certainly smoke a mouthful when it roasted Umpire Mitchell for ineficiency after a recent series in New Orleans. The incompetency is plain. On balls and strikes his guessing ability is horrible. Besides this he is way off, and his inability to judge Price's quick breaks cost the southpaw the game. Price had only three balls off, and Wright was safe. On the bases he is no better. His greatest fault here lies in making his decisions before the play is completed, and in most cases is ten thes out of exactly the opposite. We shake hands with The Item's words, and think the league requires that better arbiters be appointed. On Saturday had been Weights's day of offense. He could have passed up but the missed them every day during the entire week, and has been missing them in other cities as well.

Wide Awake Johnny.

J. DOBBS, manager of the Montgomery Billikens, must be handed the palm. It is his energy that is winning ball games for the Billikens, while, facing the Pelicans, do not appear to be as strong as any other club that has appeared here this season. But Dobbs keeps life in the team, and his coaching on the attack is half the battle, and his players play a dashing, wide-awake game under him, taking advantage of every misplay. With a far and away inferior team Dobbs, by soaking his players take advantage of all the little breaks, got away with two of the three games with the Crackers.

Is Not Coming.

A FAN put the query to Whiffs the other day: "Why don't you toast the lard out of the local team? They deserve it. We do, too, but in our opinion differs from Mr. Fan. The team is fighting and fighting with a determination. If the ball quit, we would be right after them. But they have been making plenty of runs, sufficient to win, the pitchers or the bad breaks letting the other fellow get by for a winner. Billy Smith is trying to bolster the wobbly pitching staff, and with the rest of the team playing great ball despite the odds, it would be unjust to sling the hammer.

Anyone's Race.

THE SEASON has two-thirds yet to run. The local team has the class, and class will tell. It is the best ball team Atlanta ever had, and is far and away superior of any team in the league barring the hurlers. With the team only two games from second place and only seven from the lead, and the season three months and a fraction yet to run, we should worry.

Japs Winners.

Tokio, June 1.—The Keio university baseball team defeated the Leland Stanford university team today. The score was: Keio, 8; 7, 3; Leland Stanford, 3; 5; 2.

Musser and Brackenridge In Warm Pitchers' Battle; Vols Win It in the Ninth

NO GAME TODAY.

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—(Special.)—The Crackers will be idle Monday, the schedule game with the Vols having been moved up in order to catch the Sunday crowd. King Brady, who was the only Atlanta pitcher to win from the Vols on the Crackers' former visit, is Manager Billy Smith's announced choice for the Tuesday's game, while Schwartz will depend on George Beck, the Moline marvel, to continue his winning streak.

By Paul W. Treanor.

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—(Special.)—It was Bill Schwartz's great generalship, coupled with the walloping pinch hitting of Eddie Noyes and Clapt Perry in the ninth inning which robbed the Crackers of a victory they could almost taste and gave the Sabbath day scrap to the Vols 2 to 1.

Paul Musser, the best in the Cracker stables, had pitched superb ball up to the fatal ninth, turning the eager Vols back with only a trio of safe cracks, and the Dogs were hurrying home to supper when Schwartz called "Lumbago" Noyes from the bench to hit for Brackenridge.

Eddie sent them back to their seats when he drove a terrific wallop to the top of the right field fence, which struck a knot of a paling and dropped back into the overflow crowd below. Under the ground rules he could only take two bases. The boy manager followed up his luck by sending out Owad Nicholson, the fleetest runner on the club, on act as legs for Noyes, and Nick raced to third on Callahan's tap to Algeman.

Musser Weakens.

Paul was weakening fast and lost control of the plate, giving Lindsay four bad ones. Nicholson came in from third like a ghost on Jud Daley's roller to Whitey and easily slid around Chapman's attempt to toss to the plate was perfect.

Perry's slashing two-sacker into the right field corner sent Lindsay across the pan, and won a scrap that nine times out of ten would have gone to the Crackers.

No better example of the fickleness of the bugs could be wanted than this inning. Yesterday Schwartz was hooted and hissed for yanking Williams when the latter had the game cinched, and he was cheered to the echo because his strategy won the game.

The Vols made their lone tally in the sixth, when Young let Bailey's single get away from him and it rolled up the right field bank into the crowd, giving Bailey a chance to scamper to first in order to let Bailey reach third. With the infield drawn in close, Bisland shot one to Lindsay which he booted long enough to allow Bailey to get across the plate, but Johnny threw the runner out by a step.

Crackers' Big Chance.

The Crackers passed up a glorious chance to make affair up in their half of the third when Brackenridge bumped into a peck of trouble. Joe Agler opened the round-up with the first hit of the game after Gibson had dropped his third foul strike. Chapman, a Texas leaguer back of second moved Joe up a peg, and the Cincinnati boy was safe at first.

Brackenridge got Musser's bunt and shot live to Bisland, third, but Callahan Long pulled a clean single over Lindsay's head. Chap had too much reliance on Daley's arm to go any further than third.

With the sacks packed, Harry Welchonce gave Lindsay a chance for the greatest fielding play ever seen in the dell and incidentally a piece of the toughest luck the Crackers encountered in the matinee. Harry drove a sizzling drive to Perry, the ball ricocheted off his glove over his head into Lindsay's paw and Chapman was smothered by the throw. Whitey Algermann dashed the Crackers' hopes by grounding weakly to the pitcher.

The Vols pulled some more stuff in their fourth and won it by the perfectly good hits. After Lindsay had fanned, Daley tore off the first sack for the Vols by singling between third and short. He swiped second when Chapman dropped a pitch out to catch him going down.

Daley's Bone.

Perry pulled a boner, but Jud had read so much about Tommy's wind that he hugged third. Tommy pegged wild to the plate to cut Jud off, but he made the effort to score, although Perry legged it to second. Young lifted a short fly to right. Agler intercepted Bailey's throw and snapping the ball to second, caught Perry flat-footed, while Daley was racing home.

Whitey Algermann got his second chance to do a little pinch hitting in the fifth, after Tommy Long had singled and Welchonce doubled into the crowd, which gone. Bailey took his easy roller and tossed Whitey out at first.

The second sucker's third opportunity came in the seventh, with Chapman on third and Welchonce perched on first. Chap had walked to open the round, reached second on Schwartz's low throw of Long's tap after Musser had whiffed and went to third when Welchonce forced Tommy at second. Whitey failed to respond to his pal's appeal, lifting a tall foul to Gibson, much to his disgust.

CARPENTIER STOPS BOMBARDIER WELLS

Ghent, Belgium, June 1.—George Carpentier, the French heavyweight pugilist, today won the heavyweight championship of Europe by knocking out Bombardier Wells, the British champion, in the fourth round. Carpentier himself took the count of nine in the first round, and was again sent to the floor in the second.

In the third round the Frenchman discovered Bombardier's weak stomach showering blows in the mid-section, crumpled up the Englishman. He ended the fight with a right-hand punch to the solar plexus, just before the end of the fourth round.

The bout was scheduled for twenty rounds. Carpentier is a light heavyweight. Only recently he was middleweight champion of Europe, and previous to that welterweight champion of France. The Englishman had a considerable advantage in weight and height.

Gulls and Crackers Make Hit With "An Old Time Fan"

By Charles A. Lamar.

The visit of Sir Mickey Finn and his Mobile Gulls, so-called, to our dail city furnished an object lesson of considerable repute, except it from an on-looker.

It is my deliberate opinion that if Mr. B. Smith and his perspiring pals cop the hunting they'll have to reckon with Finn and his band of Indians, and that's no irridescent dream, believe me.

For years and years Mike was nourished by the vapors of the subway in the swamps of Arkansas, at Little Rock, but since he cast his fortuna with Mobile fate switched the signals and out the gay rope and he's now basking in the limelight at the top of the heap and that's basking a lot.

Has Corking Team.

He has a corking good team and pitching staff that's "there" all the way, and you can't win pennants without pitchers who can pitch and that's the dope.

And he has some wielders of the clouty stick, too. That man Robertson can jolt the horse hide to the uninhabited dears day in and day out, and Mr. Hogg, a protege of Mercer, is some pitcher.

If his pitchers can go the route without "blowing," the Gulls will be a factor in the race to the finish.

Some of the baseball writers in the circuit have broken out in rapturous eulogy of the powers and incomparable skill of the athletes representing their respective cities, and especially the shortcomings of Mr. B. Smith's Crackers, when they get the harpoon where the Indian mogul keeps the heart-teeth, and that's all right.

What's more, it gets them the joyous mirth from the galleries, but it requires something more than the sandy fealty ers of the loo-loo bird and a bunch of girls on dress parade to stampede the Crackers and whiff them to the hog train, and that's a cincharino rivited through and through and all around the edges.

Crackers Are Good.

Mr. B. Smith is a considerable "crabber" at times and he's got strong on the angelic disposition thing, but he knows baseball backwards and sideways and his team today is one of the best ever seen in this league and the vanguard breezes of the autumnal equinox will prove it, or I miss my guess a city block. You'll have to slip it to Bill, and his gang They are the goods.

The season is now a strenuous proposition all over the land, and the festive fans are putting in a lot of real work in an effort to make or unmake the athletic gents who play baseball for the love of the sport and incidentally a large stipend on the side. And so it goes.

Winter Prophets Stung.

But as usual, the prophets of the Winter league have been whirled around as if they were tied to a rope by the actual results on the ball field.

The "brittle" Phillies and the meek lowly Brooklyns whirled in and upset the dope from the Kick Off And such are the penalties of fame.

While the Giants, the Pirates and Cubs were tooting their horns and compelling aspirin to come dancing with her starry eyes, Doolin and Dahlen were making good with the haymaker wallops, and George Stallings put a crimp in the Giants that made the Jimpson weeds turn into violets. That is to say, the Boston variety. One could almost wheedle a wheeze out of that.

Lookout for the Bostons, they can't win, but they'll make a lot of ball players look cheap. Stallings is some manager.

McCarty Was in Poor Shape Says Ex-Champion Jim Corbett

By James J. Corbett.

New York, June 1.—(Special.)—Without definite knowledge of the conditions prior to the Luther McCarty-Arthur Pelky match which resulted so fatally, I would venture the guess that Luther entered the ring in poor physical condition. Whether this was due to any natural or inherent ailment or neglect of training in preparing for the bout I am not prepared to say, but had he trained as an athlete should have for a contest of skill and endurance it is not conceivable that a blow to the heart or to the jaw would have affected him the way it did.

There is nothing particularly dangerous in a punch over the heart or on the jaw. I have assimilated many of them during my career, as any man must who follows the strenuous game of boxing. I was beaten by Jim Jeffries at Coney Island by a punch on the jaw in the twenty-third round. Jeff weighed probably fifty pounds more than I at the time, and could hit a powerful blow, yet I felt no bad effects from the blow. But I was in perfect physical condition at the time, or as near so as hard work and conscientious and intelligent training could make me.

It is ridiculous and unjust for the Canadian authorities to hold Arthur Pelky for his part in the unfortunate affair. Investigation will probably show that McCarty did not train as he should have done for the Pelky bout. Life in the great majority of fight followers everywhere, McCarty and his manager, Billy McCarney, may have looked upon the match as "easy money." Certainly no one who had seen Pelky box in the east ever thought for a moment he would have a chance to beat McCarty. Luther very likely was overconfident of success, and consequently lax in his training. And if such was the case Manager McCarney is not entirely blameless in the matter. It was his duty, to the public and to his fighter, to see that Luther was in fit physical condition to fight, or not to have allowed him to start at all.

Then, too, conditions existing in Calgary are to an extent responsible for McCarty's death. In New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and most cities in this country prize fighting contests are permitted the contestants are subjected to rigid physical examinations before entering the ring—or at least the rules laid down by the governing boards call for such examinations. Had such precaution been taken in the Calgary bout Dan Cartsy's ailment, if any existed, or lack of condition would most likely have been discovered by the physicians and a fatality prevented.

While the unfortunate ending of the bout is to be greatly deplored, I do not think it will harm professional boxing to any degree. Naturally, those enemies of the sport who are always looking for such as brutal and all that sort of thing are going to capitalize the affair, but I believe boxing, as at present conducted in most sporting centers of the country, has too great hold on the people to be affected seriously by McCarty's death.

MILAN AND HERZOG LEAD BASE STEALERS UNDER THE BIG TENT

HAL CHASE TRADED TO THE WHITE SOX

Borton and Zeider Go to the Yanks in Exchange for the Peerless First-Sacker—The Deal Closed Sunday.

New York, June 1.—First Baseman Hal Chase has been traded to the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Second Baseman Rollie Zeider and First Baseman Borton, Manager Frank Chance, of the New York American league team, announced tonight.

Chance said he had canvassed all the American league teams before making the trade. He explained that while he considered Chase a great first baseman, Hal had fallen off in his batting to such a degree that a change of some kind was compulsory.

It was announced that Chance himself would play first base regularly for the locals, beginning tomorrow, and might use Borton in the outfield. Zeider probably will be played at second.

Chance has had his eye on Zeider ever since assuming management of the New Yorks. Borton hit .371 for Chicago in 31 games last year. Zeider and his record here Tuesday morning. Chase, notified today of the deal, received instructions to report to the White Sox at once.

Chase, oldest member in point of service on the New York Americans, joined the team in 1905. Regarded by probably the majority of baseball observers as one of the greatest first basement since the game began, and once a hard hitter, he has been of late an uncertain batter. He was taken from the ranks and made manager of the team in the latter part of the 1910 season, succeeding George Stallings, and remained at the head of the club the following year. Harry Wolverton was his successor.

Chase has been unfortunate in many ways, having frequently experienced long spells of sickness and being out of the game often through injuries.

PHILLIES AND NAPS HARDEST HITTERS

LOOKOUTS HERE NEXT THURSDAY

Elberfeld's Rejuvenated Hill-toppers at Ponce for Three-Game Series—Close Games Expected.

Norman ("Kid") Elberfeld and his rejuvenated Lookouts will make their second appearance of the season on the local ball park on Thursday of this week, when they come here for a three-game series.

The Lookouts were easy pickings for the Crackers the last time they met, but such will not be the case on this trip. The Kid has got a real ball club representing Chattanooga now and they are going to be more than interesting for all comers.

Ir. Sommers and Coveleskie he has the two best left-handers in the Southern league. In Street he has the best catcher. He has strengthened the other departments so thoroughly that he now has a most formidable ball club.

SPEED FANS INSPECT MOTORDROME SUNDAY

Eight Thousand Fans Hear Free Band Concert—Tickets Go on Sale This Morning.

Atlanta speed fans had a field day yesterday afternoon, examining Jack Prince's new motordome at the old circus grounds, and listening to the free band concert.

Owing to the rain Saturday it was impossible to put the finishing touches on the track. Some grading remains to be done, the wire has not been put all the way around the top and the seats have not been boxed in.

But despite all this it was possible for the seven or eight thousand speed enthusiasts, who journeyed out during the afternoon, to get an idea of the sort of amusement that will be offered Friday night, when the lid is formally lifted.

The fears of the alarmists that there would be editing or disorder would result because of the crowds, were not realized. Manager Prince provided adequate police protection and, though the crowd was there, it behaved in orderly fashion.

Inspector O. K's. Plant.

Saturday C. P. Thomas, building inspector, made a careful inspection of the new racing plant and "O. Kid" it enthusiastically.

Early in the week the building will be wired for electric lights. Around the track huge tungsten lamps will be placed at intervals of twelve feet, illuminating the course brilliantly.

There will also be lights at the entrance, on the stairway, in the subway under the track and elsewhere.

Tickets go on sale this morning at Shepherd's Cigar shop, corner of Edgewood and Peyton. The prices will be $1 and $2 per seat. The $2 seats will be reserved exclusively for whites. The colored section will be fenced off in the infield.

HOWARD AND HUGHES ON GOOD COMMITTEES

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, June 1.—(Special.)—Committee assignments for the sixty-third congress will be finally announced in the house tomorrow and that body will be ready to begin its general legislative grind. Up to this time only the ways and means committee and the committee on rules has been announced.

Representative Dudley M. Hughes, of Georgia, lands the biggest new place that comes to Georgia in the chairmanship of the committee on education. This will give him an extra clerk and a handsome suite of offices.

Representative William Schley Howard, of the fifth, will succeed to the vacancy thus caused on the committee on military affairs. In view of the great interests of the fifth district in the army, this is a valuable committee assignment for Mr. Howard.

Representative Asbury F. Lever, of South Carolina, will succeed John D. Lamb as chairman of the agricultural committee, and David J. Lewis, of Maryland, will land the chairmanship of the committee on labor, over which there has been a vigorous contest.

HIGH TEMPERATURES PREDICTED FOR WEEK

Washington, June 1.—Temperatures slightly above the seasonal average in the gulf states and near or slightly below the average throughout the rest of the country were predicted tonight by the weather bureau in its weekly bulletin.

Generally fair weather is looked for, conditions indicating only local precipitation usually below normal.

"A disturbance that is now over the Great Lakes will move eastward," the bulletin says, "and cause local rains and thunderstorms Monday in the eastern and southeastern states, and it will be followed by rising pressure and generally fair weather for several days in the region east of the Rocky mountains. Another disturbance will develop Tuesday or Wednesday over the western plateau region and move eastward, crossing the middlewest Thursday or Friday and the eastern states near the end of the week; this disturbance will be attended by local showers and thunderstorms and be followed by cooler weather."

LOW ROUND TRIP RATE TO BALTIMORE VIA SEABOARD.

$20.85 from Atlanta. Corresponding low rates from other points. On sale June 5, 6, 7. Through trains, electric-lighted steel sleeping and dining cars; observation cars. City Ticket Office, 33 Peachtree.

Austell High School Prize Winners

Here is an interesting aggregation of prize winners from Austell, Ga. During the recent closing exercises of the high school there these four distinguished themselves.

In the top row, to the right, is seen Roy Spink, who won the first medal for oratory, and standing by his side, Wood Mason, of Philadelphia, are the best sluggers in the big show this season. Here are the ten leading sluggers of the two big leagues and the games played Wednesday, May 28:

"GIANTS" IN BAD LUCK BEATEN BY "PIRATES"

Leaders in Federal Penitentiary Pennant Race Last Year Lose Hard-Fought Game.

The pennant race among the eight clubs in the United States penitentiary Baseball league in this city is now two months old, and has developed as many surprises as the real ones in the major leagues of the national game. The "Giants," winners last year at the penitentiary, are no better than fourth, with a percentage of .500. The "Athletics" are in the "cellar," with not a victory to their credit. The race at this time is between a team known as the "Hustlers" and the "Tigers," both with a clean record of victories. The "Hustlers" having one to the good on the "Tigers."

"Old Reliable," star pitcher for the "Giants," who won fifteen out of sixteen games last season, was hurt last Saturday, and this has almost put the "Giants" out of the race. At the time of his injury, "Old Reliable," who is also known as "Black Matty," had reached the last inning of a no-hit game, while the team he pitched for had piled up eight runs. "Old Reliable's" substitute allowed nine runs to cross the plate.

"Good Words" Tells Story.

"Good Words," the prison paper, makes a feature of baseball and has a sporting editor with a thoroughly up-to-date style. This is the way "Good Words" describes the game mentioned above:

"Now for the game of the season. Again the mighty Giants bite the dust, and it was the despised Pirates who laid them low. Up to the last inning 'Old Reliable' had a no-hit game and the score stood 8 to 1 in his favor. In stopping a hard hit grounder, he hurt his pitching hand, and 'Nick' essayed to finish. Things broke loose. It was a tidal wave. The Pirates, placing hit after hit over second, scored three runs. More hits, and then Register No. 3832, with the bases intoxicated, hit over the right field bank and everybody scored. The Giant's captain goes into the box, but the Pirates would not be denied, and old '13,' the Pirates' star third baseman, lays down a fast shortstop and the score is tied. The Giants retire a man and fight gallantly, but the Pirates, waving the black flag, pushed over the winning run."

On the general subject of baseball, "Good Words" says:

"Prison bars will kill interest in some lines of thought, but the genius fan lives, moves and has his being here, just as the fanatic outside. We have men here who keep the 'dope' of the prison league, and others who have the records of the big leagues at their tongues' end. Many of the officers are baseball 'bugs,' and the results of the games in the American, National and Southern leagues are listened to in the prison every evening. Some of the clerks make copies and distribute them to the various departments, and soon it is known all over the institution."

Hawk Is Presented.

The prison league plays under American league rules. The president is Deputy Warden Hawk. He had to decide a protested game recently, and ordered it played over. The prison league recognizes the waiving and releasing of players from the different teams, and every one is known to league ball comes up for settlement.

"Ban Johnson, the dominating disciplinarian who rules the American league, has anything on our president," says "Good Words." "Sully and Jack spend part of each afternoon at the ball park and keep the grounds in good condition, and also make needed improvements. The scorer and sporting editor appreciate the new press box built for them."

Courtney to Quit Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 1.—Charles E. Courtney, the veteran coach of the Cornell university crews, it became known today, will cease active work at the head of the Cornell "navy" when his contract ends three years hence. He has been coach for Cornell for twenty-eight years.

FOR RITUAL MURDER OF A CHRISTIAN BOY

Trial of Mendel Beillias Excites Interest—47 Wounds Inflicted on Boy.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The ministry of justice has ordered the trial in June or early in July of Mendel Beillias, accused of the murder of a Christian boy, Andrew Yushchinsky, on March 25, 1911, near Kieff. It is announced that the prosecutor will uphold the theory of ritual murder.

The mutilated body of Andrew Yushchinsky, 12 years old, was discovered in a small cave on a suburban holding just outside of Kieff. The hands were tied behind the back and the post-mortem examination revealed no fewer than 47 wounds.

Beillias, a clerk in a brick factory nearby, was arrested, and has been held in close confinement ever since. According to the official medical evidence quoted in the indictment, all the wounds were inflicted while the boy was alive.

Numerous witnesses have already been examined, and their testimony has been incorporated in the indictment, which concludes:

"On the basis of these facts Beillias is charged with entering into a conspiracy with other undiscovered persons to deprive the boy Yushchinsky of life by methods of torture and with having perpetrated or connived at the atrocities perpetrated on the boy."

Walsh to Meet Kilbane.

Boston, Mass., June 1.—Jimmy Walsh, of this city, has accepted an offer from the Queen City club of Cincinnati to box Johnny Kilbane in that city July 4. Kilbane and Walsh fought to a draw a year ago.

ON "MAN OF GALILEE" MARSHALL SPEAKS

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., June 1.—Vice President Marshall, visiting here at the request of Rev. A. D. Soutter-land, his former pastor while governor of Indiana, spent a busy day, making two addresses and participating in patriotic exercises incident to a flag-raising. In the forenoon the vice president spoke in the Presbyterian church on "The Man of Galilee."

The patriotic exercises held in the afternoon in the state park were impressive. While the band played "Dixie" and the "Star-Spangled Banner" a veteran of the north and one of the south slowly drew a large flag to the top of the pole. The vice president's second address was on "The Citizen That Makes for Righteousness."

Vice President Marshall who is accompanied by Mrs. Marshall, will return to Washington tomorrow.

BAPTISM MAKES GIRL WARD OF THE MASONS

Buffalo, N. Y., June 1.—With ceremonies used in this country for the first time since 1771, Ruth Katharine Daggett, baby daughter of Byron R. Daggett, was baptized at the Scottish Rites Cathedral here today. The ceremony made the baby a ward of the Lodge of Perfection and entitled to the guardianship and protection of the Masonic fraternity in every part of the world. Mr. Daggett is a thirty-second degree Mason and sovereign prince of Talmont Lodge of Perfection of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite.

14-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLS SISTER'S SWEETHEART

New Orleans, June 1.—Florville LaCoste, a boy of 14, shot and killed William Easton, 19, his sister's sweetheart, here today, as the sequel to a violent quarrel between the girl and Easton. The shooting occurred just outside the LaCoste home, from which the boy had driven Easton at the point of a shotgun. After the boy had been taken in charge by police, LaCorte declared that Easton was abusing his sister when he interfered.

FARMS and FARMERS

Address all letters intended for this Department to Col. R. J. Redding, Editor of Farms and Farmers' Department, Griffin, Ga.

JUNE ON THE FARM.

If we are to believe the almanacs summer commences on June 21-22, because that is the date on which the sun rises and sets furthest towards the north east and northwest, and is most nearly perpindicular at noon than on any day of the year.

The fact is, however, that it is then exactly midsummer according to astronomy, and nearly so according to the almanacs and our feelings.

It is an exceedingly busy month on the farm and the farmer has many demands on his time and his good judgment and his energies. This particular June presents the unusual spectacle of crops very little more advanced towards maturity than they usually are at the middle of May and even earlier. We find that on the greater part of the cotton area the plants are hardly large enough to stand alone, cotton chopping has only just begun in earnest, and the corn is more or less backward compared with normal conditions.

Cultivating the Crops.

"Speed the plow" is now the slogan of the farm. Much may be done to forward the belated crops of corn, cotton, tobacco, etc., by thorough and rapid cultivation. Now is the time when many a farmer would be glad to have one or more gasoline motors to pull his wide-extending cultivators—horses with muscles of steel and legs of iron that need neither corn nor fodder, and that never tire, although it must be admitted that they do sometimes balk and refuse to work. But the horse-drawn implements—always the cultivator and scraper—will serve the farmer as it has in the past, back to the days of our grandfathers and beyond. The plodding five-hoed cultivators, however, are rapidly taking the place of the heirlooms come down from the days of old.

The corn crops ought to be gone over every ten days at the furthest, and even oftener if conditions favor and permit. The object should be, not to break up the deep soil between the rows, but simply to keep the upper inch or so thoroughly stirred so as to form what some call a "dust mulch," but which need not be actually dust with the work of stirring the upper inch or so should be pushed forward as quickly after a downpour of rain as may be possible without risk of puddling the soil. The stirred, loosened surface acts precisely as does a mulch of leaves or straw, and every one knows how effective covering, although soon becoming dry itself, presents the moisture of the next lower layers from escaping into the air by evaporation.

I have often felt inclined to complain at the clerk of the weather for sending a good season on the crop immediately after going over with a cultivator—thus, in a measure, spoiling a well-done job.

Wait a few days and repeat the stirring and the effect on the growing plants will be almost magical. My ideal of a cultivated crop is that it to rain a good season every Saturday night—slow and steady, all night long, hold up the crops for the next week for me to church, enabling the farmer to start his cultivators by Monday or Tuesday, get over the entire crop in three or four days and then —go a fishing," if he finds nothing else to do—which is not probable.

The Walking Cultivator.

Corn planted in March, April and May does need to be hurried forward because of danger of frost next fall, but at this time it is important that cotton shall be encouraged to grow steadily and surely towards maturity. Corn has plenty of time to stand and be preserved. In my own little crop which I planted "already chopped out," the distance between rows, being four feet, and the space between stalks has been reduced from the usual distance of three feet to two and a half and leaving only one stalk in a hill—land from which a yield of one-half bale per acre would be reasonably sure of a good year, and with rows three feet apart upland there should be a stalk every twelve inches or thereabouts.

Peas After Oats.

Of course, most farmers will plant cowpeas or soy beans on the small grain stubble. June is the ideal month for planting these legumes, for the simple but sufficient reason that the vines will be at the proper stage for cutting for hay during the first month of September—one of the three driest of the year, and thus affording just the right conditions for haymaking.

Dutcher, true, is quite as dry, but the days are shorter and the sun not so hot.

It is a good plan to plant part of the stubble to soy beans and part to cowpeas. Some farmers prefer the first named as being easier to handle and producing a very rich and nutritious hay. The planting and cultivating of the two are very similar, but the soy bean seems to do better when planted in rows and given one or two plowings. Indeed, cowpeas do better in rows, yielding more hay or more peas.

Sweet Potatoes.

Sweet potato slips of the Nancy Hall or Myers" Early may be planted throughout the month and will have plenty of time to make a good yield, excepting, probably as far north as Tennessee. I have had roots of eating size from the Nancy Hall variety in sixty days from planting the slips.

June in the Garden.

The seeds of most kinds of vegetables planted in June will have ample time in which to mature good yields, especially beans—string and lima—corn, tomatoes, okra, celery, etc. Collard seed may be sown at once and also fall maturing cabbages towards the end of the month.

The good gardener will not permit any portion of his garden to lie idle long, but will permit the weeds and grass to take possession and befoul the soil with seeds. If no more vegetables are to be grown such vacancies may, with advantage, be sown in common cowpeas or in soy beans for the benefit of the soil or for the family cow. The second crop of tomatoes may be transplanted now and on until July 15 and even later.

R. J. REDDING.

Griffin, Ga.

VETCH CULTURE.

J. D. Thomson, Murrayville, Ga.—I wish to sow a trial patch of vetch for winter cover crop and spring hay. Will a dark gray sandy soil do? Wheat and oats and rye cow peas for hay be suitable?

A variety will be best? What kind and how much fertilizer should be used?

What kind of grain will be best to sow with vetch for nurse crops and which is the best soil of fairly productive quality or should receive two or three hundred pounds of acid phosphate and potash, especially if the land be light and flat? Is a freely productive soil no inoculation of same? Will it be absolutely necessary, but otherwise how should it be inoculated and if the soil supplied wit h*two or three bushels* of top soil from a field in which vetch has been successfully grown. If sown for hay it is usual to sow about thirty to forty pounds of vetch seed and one to two bushels of oats per acre. From September 1 to October 1 is the best time to sow vetch. It may be done as late as October 20 in the southern half of the cotton belt. Hairy vetch is the most hardy, and best suited for hay. Sow the vetch seed and oats together and harrow in with disk harrow about two or three inches deep and sow in corn and cotton as is cultivating the cotton. Seed and nitrogen may be sale by all seedsmen. Send to Director of Experiments, Auburn, Ala., for free copy of press bulletin No. 31.

SUCKERING CORN.

J. W. Holbrook, Monitrie, Ga.—Will you please tell me why are my corn is suckering out from the main stalk? I broadcasted a little stable manure practically all over ground, broke the land deep and then bedded it out with turn plow and then put 200 pounds of 10—2—6 fertilizer to the acre. There is many more suckers than shooter coming out from the main stalk. Please tell me if they ought to come off. We have a fine stand and healthy.

Answer—My experience is decidedly in favor of the practice of removing the suckers from corn, especially when very numerous. The suckers add little if at all to the yield and rather reduce the yield of grain. If you have a good stand of stalks for the ears to produce ears you might risk leaving the suckers. I know of but one variety of corn that will do well, My observation suggests that corn is likely to sucker more or less (1) when covered too shallow, (2) when dirting (first plowing) is too long delayed; (3) when stable manure (fresh) is used freely in the hill. I might add that if there be three or more stalks left in a hill only one stalk before half leg high there will be few suckers or none at all.

"ITCH" OF DOG.

Howard W. Rice, Brown's Crossing, Ga.—I have a dog about 8 months old. He has mange. Will you tell me what is good for it? If you can, send me answer in The Tri-Weekly Constitution.

Answer—I presume what you call "itch" is mange. Wash the dog as follows: Wash the dog thoroughly with soap and water to remove all scab and dirt. Then dip the dog well into all affected parts an ointment of 2 ounces each of flowers of sulphur and tobacco dust. Apply one a day, but the washing need not be repeated unless more than two applications are required. Or you may mix one pound of oil of tar and 20 ounces of whale oil soap and apply once a day, after washing as first directed. Apply fresh litter daily and scald with boiling water and lime, sulphur, salt, etc. Sponge over the kennel with 1 ounce of bichloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate) in 1 gallon of water.

KIDNEY TROUBLE OF AGED MULE.

J. S. T., Hendricks, Ga.—I have a mule 20 or 25 years old. She has some kind of kidney trouble. His urine is almost black; has but little appetite; is sluggish, and is very thin. Bedding in flesh. Is getting so low he is not able to work. Can you tell me what is the matter and give me a remedy?

Answer—The condition of your mule is probably due to old age and the resulting gradual weakening of the organs of digestion and excretion. Give ½ drams of aloes, ½ pints of raw linseed oil. If aloes, ad to the 6 drams 1 ounce of ginger and dissolve both in ½ pint hot water, add ½ pint cold water and drench. After the aloes has operated give 1 dram each of tincture chloride of iron, tincture of ginger and tincture of gentian all at one dose and three doses per day, in ½ pint of water. Give thin slops of bran and allow him to eat anything he will.

REVOLUTION GOING ON IN LIFE OF AMERICA

Social Reform the Battle Cry of Far-Reaching Upheaval, Says Dr. Ogden.

America is passing through a revolution in her national life, as far-reaching in its effect on the race as the renaissance or the reformation, declared Dr. Dunbar Ogden Sunday morning at the Central Presbyterian church, in a sermon study on "The Parable of the Word of the Kingdom."

"Social reform is one of the uppermost subjects before the American people," said Dr. Ogden. "Book after book is coming from the press on such subjects as 'The Social Task' and 'Social Reform,' and note after note is sounding through the land, stirring people to greater work on the subject of social work.

"Our own southern church, in its last general assembly here, gave expression to the great responsibility resting upon the church for the practical preaching of the mighty word of God to the masses.

"Within the past few centuries the cry of liberty has been the keynote of a growing spirit of reform. In the renaissance, the race attained liberty of thought. In the reformation, liberty of religion. And in the American revolution man fought for and won liberty in his civil life. The revolution now going on the Word of God is working in the hearts of men with a regenerating touch, and bringing about a realization of the tremendous responsibility of the individual to his fellow men.

This picture of the revolution being wrought by the Word of God, Dr. Ogden drew in a modern application of the parable of the sower who went forth to scatter his seed. He showed how this parable represents the problem facing the church today, for the Word of God, which the church goes forth to scatter, falls so often upon unfruitful ground. But the tendency of the times reveals a growing acceptance of the Word in the individual lives of men, he said. Dr. Ogden will continue on following Sundays the series of sermons on "Parable of the Kingdom," which he began Sunday morning.

CLUBS USED TO GUARD SUFFRAGE SPEAKERS

London, June 1.—Defying the police order closing Hyde Park to their meetings, the Woman's Social and Political union speakers today held forth there under the protection of male sympathizers armed with clubs.

When the non-militant organizations finished their customary Sunday demonstrations, finally the Woman's Social and Political union were raised at twelve different points, and as many speakers harangued the crowds.

Mobs of men and boys started to rush the speakers, but found themselves menaced by disciplined bodyguards wielding clubs and the fierce crowds had to content themselves with hooting and hissing, while the police looked on without attempting to check the speakers.

FEDERAL MONEY FOR THE BANKS

National Banks in South to Get Nearly $3,000,000 of the $11,581,500 to Be Deposited.

Washington, June 1.—Secretary McAdoo tonight announced the distribution by states of the additional $10,000,000 of federal funds which the treasury department will deposit in the national banks. His statement also discussed the manner in which the banks had received the recent order that 2 per cent interest yearly be charged on all government deposits.

Of the 559 active depositary banks on May 1, when the secretary issued his interest order, Mr. McAdoo said only seven have decline dto pay the interest charge and ceased to be government depositaries, surrendering their federal funds to the treasury. The $10,000,000 and this surrendered amount, aggregating $11,581,500, has been apportioned in the various amounts among 607 national banks in 475 cities and towns in the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia.

Seven Banks That Refused.

The seven banks unwilling to pay interest, the secretary said, were:

The National City bank, the National Bank of Commerce and the Chemical National bank, of New York city; the National Bank of Commerce, of New London, Conn.; the Merchants' National bank, of Savannah, Ga.; the First National bank, of Buffalo, Wyoming, and the Seaboard National bank, of San Francisco.

"Various banks in different sections of the country in expressing their willingness to pay the interest charge," said Mr. McAdoo, "strongly commended the wisdom and fairness of the administration's new policy in imposing the charge, although it necessarily reduced their profit. In some applications for a share of the additional $10,000,000, banks, especially the largest ones in Boston and Chicago, requested a million dollars or more of the deposits.

"Twenty national bank depositaries in New York city have notified the department that they desire to retain the deposits, and that they will pay the 2 per cent interest.

The secretary announced he had reduced the government deposits in a number of banks which, he said, "at the close of the last administration held amounts which seemed to be excessive or unjustified, the reductions in most cases being made mainly on the protests of the banks which desired to retain the funds notwithstanding the interest charge."

What Southern Banks Receive.

Under the distribution of the new deposits the thirteen southern states will receive $2,902,000 in the banks in 127 cities; the eight middle states $2,952,000 in 164 banks in 133 cities, and the nine western states, $950,000 in 72 banks and 60 cities.

Apportionments were made on the basis of population, capital and surplus, needs of the respective sections of the country and the circulation status of the banks. Reference being given to those institutions whose present circulation amounts to not less than 40 per cent of their outstanding capital. Of the 607 banks receiving the deposits, 274 already were government depositaries, and some of the remaining 425 banks had been previously known as inactive depositaries. Boldin of only nominal balances.

GROWN IN AN ATLANTA GARDEN

One day's cutting from the famous garden in West End of Mrs. J. J. Joines. For twenty-two years she has had in constant attendance with her in the garden the pet cat, who enjoys the flowers as much as she and her patrons do.

FURR DIES OF WOUNDS HE RECEIVED IN DUEL

With Both Arms and Shoulder Shattered, "Whack" Riorden, His Opponent, Will Recover.

Dalton, Ga., June 1.—Dr. L. C. Furr, wounded yesterday in a duel with "Whack" Riorden at Grandall, Murray county, died today. Riorden, with both arms and a shoulder shattered by bullets, and wounds in his head and abdomen, will recover.

Each man fired six shots, neither missing his opponent. Both men are from prominent families.

Drowned While Bathing.

Maxton, N. C., June 1.—While bathing in a millpond near here this afternoon, Marvin Maness, a youth 12 years of age, got beyond his depth and was drowned before assistance could reach him. The body was recovered.

Ex-Senator Palmer Dead.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—Former United States Senator Thomas W. Palmer died today after a long illness. Born here in 1830, he was elected to the United States senate in 1883, and after serving one term he was appointed United States minister to Spain. Upon his return he was appointed president of the World's Columbian exposition in Chicago in 1892.

Small Bond Owner.

(From The Philadelphia Ledger.)

It is not likely that the federal government will have a considerable revenue from an unexpected source when the new income tax law goes to work. A lawyer from an interior Pennsylvania city was telling me that his wife owns some coupon bonds. "It is her intention," said he, "to pay the 1 per cent income tax when she deposits her coupons, but she will not take the trouble, but more especially so to the expense, of proving her exemption under the law. The cost of filing an affidavit would be as much as the tax on the coupons, and as I understand the provisions of the law it will be necessary to prove exemption by affidavits. The result will be that as my wife will not reclaim the amount of her tax it will go to the government. I have no doubt whatever that thousands of persons who own a few coupon bonds, or even, say, eight or ten of them, will do likewise, and the life of coupons will be short.

Here is the way the small bond owner will lose out in this income tax game: Let Mr. Doe own $1,000 worth of coupon bonds, all 2 per cents. Each semiannual coupon is worth $20. Were two bonds to pay true interest on January 1, two others February 1, two others March 1, two others April 1 and the remaining two May 1, then Mr. Doe will have $30 worth of coupons to deposit at the beginning of each of these five months, and the same amount at the first of each of five months later in the year.

The bank will retain an income tax of 1 per cent, or 50 cents each month. If Doe wishes to get that 50 cents back he will have to file at least 60 affidavits each time to make an affidavit of exemption. Financially he will be no better off by doing it, but the chances are that if he lets Uncle Same keep it, and he will avoid the trouble ten times each year of filing an affidavit.

For a person who, say, $2,000 worth of bonds the loss will be less to forego reclaiming the 1 per cent tax than to go to the expense of getting it. It is in this way that the government will get a tax from a great number of persons whose income falls far short of the $4,000 exemption dead-line.

Perhaps Cordell Hull, who framed the income tax bill, may take the particular kink out of it which provides for collecting the income tax "at the source." This feature of it is causing concern for every bank in the United States, and it is sure to create disgust among a vast number of small bondholders when they once realize its full import.

Discrediting the Gulf Stream.

(From The New York Tribune.)

Sydney Smith once said that he had heard Jeffrey speak disrespectfully of the equator, for which nobody who ever "crossed the line" in those days could blame the famous reviewer. But here is Dr. Nansen, Arctic hero and professor of oceanography, in sober earnest discrediting the gulf stream.

The gulf stream, he tells us, really isn't the gulf stream at all. That is to say, the vast sea of warm water which saves northwestern Europe from freezing up is not at all the petty tuppenny-ha-penny driblet which trickles through the Straits of Florida. Just what it is or where it comes from he is not yet quite sure, but he thinks it probable that at a depth of 800 fathoms or thereabouts there is a warm current flowing northward, the whole Atlantic broad, which, when it gets to the latitude where it is needed, bobs up serenely from below to make the British Isles and Scandinavia habitable.

Maybe it is so. In that case it is hardly worth while for Representative Calder to bother any more with his scheme for controlling the course of the gulf stream, and for the relief of Europe it may be observed that any Yankee trick to put that continent into a hole by damming the Florida Straits would be entirely futile, wherefore, whatever happens, we shall not advocate that would-be spiteful enterprise.

Oldest Pupil on Record.

(From The Baltimore Sun.)

Uncle Daniel Sugg, 82 years old, attends school regularly in the town of Hookerton, N. C. He owns a farm of 186 acres. When he was young he could not go to school, but now having the means, he is determined to make use of the opportunity. His neighbors are making no effort to deny him the privilege, for he is a fine specimen of the old-time negro and is very much liked by all the white people.

To the Earth's Center.

(From Popular Mechanics.)

Many of the dreams of modern science have come true, and the world has become accustomed to marvels in the way of scientific accomplishment. But the most daring dream of all—sinking a shaft to the center of the earth—contemplates a thing so stupendous as to make all past achievements seem insignificant. This has been termed a vague, foolish dream several times in the last half century, but Camille Flammarion, the French scientist and author, has recently outlined a specific plan for setting the standing armies of Europe at work digging such a shaft, the purpose being to tap the inexhaustible sources of heat and power stored beneath the surface of the earth.

In the present state of engineering science an attempt to harness these Herculean forces would result in immediate destruction of the operative used. But no man can say what advances will be made in that science in a single generation, or what agencies may be discovered for neutralizing the effect of the high temperatures which are believed to exist in the core of the earth. In fact, it is more than possible that within 200 years, or even half that time, a trip to the center of the earth may be simply a matter of time cards and train rules, with no more danger than now exists in surface transportation.

Only one means of transportation would seem to be practical—a spiral railway, running downward on a slight grade around the edge of the shaft, supported on cantilevers firmly anchored in the solid rock of the country like walls. For safe and rapid operation two tracks would be required, one for downbound traffic and the other for upbound traffic, while the curve of the track could not safely have a radius of less than 500 feet. This would make necessary a shaft 1,000 feet in diameter.

Taking No Chances.

(From The Argonaut.)

A gambler of Tin Can borrowed a sum from a money lender, and when the note fell due he said he could not settle. "You must settle," shouted the money lender. "If you don't settle I'll"— But the gambler, taking a revolver from his boot, pointed it at the money lender and said, "Eat that note or I'll let daylight through you." And the money lender, crumpled the note into a ball, put it in his mouth, chewed, vigorously, and then with a gulp swallowed the pulpy morsel. "That does saved your life, said the gambler, in a modified tone, and the cruel dat had a streak of luck and paid the money lender in full. The money lender was much pleased with this incident, and when the gambler a few weeks later, called and asked for a new loan, he was readily accommodated. The gambler, having got rid of the new loan, sat down, dipped a pen in the ink, and selected a sheet of paper whereon to write the usual acknowledgment. But the money lender hastily interposed. "Hold on, my friend," he said, and he ran to a cupboard. "Wait a minute, my friend. Would you mind writing it on this soda cracker?"

SENATOR PLEASES "MOTHER" JONES

Mother Jones, the aged labor agitator, who is known the country over and who was recently released after three months' imprisonment for her activities in stirring up trouble in the West Virginia soft coal fields, welcomed the announcement that the government was going to investigate conditions in the territory where she had been chief agitator. She was in New York when the announcement was made that the senate would appoint a special committee of five to probe the alleged oppressive conditions in West Virginia, and she determined to go to Washington to place all the facts she knew before the investigators. The Kern resolution, which the senate passed, calls for an investigation into the recent coal strike, its causes and results. The investigation, which is to be conducted by a subcommittee of five members of the committee of education and labor, is believed to be almost without precedent in the history of the government in that a branch of the national legislature avowedly sets out to inquire into the official acts of a state and the conduct of justice by its governor and courts. This feature of the resolution caused the most bitter debate in the discussion which preceded its adoption. While carefully worded, the section in question directed an inquiry into the arrest and imprisonment of citizens in violation of the laws and constitution of the United States. The reference was to the military tribunal which, under the proclamation of martial law in the Paint creek district, has sentenced persons to terms of from one to five years, including Mother Jones. Under the authority of the resolution the senate, through the education and labor committee, will look into charges of peonage in West Virginia, of violation of the constitutional laws of the United States in the trial of citizens by a military tribunal. It will examine reported combinations among operations in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act and alleged discrimination by immigration authorities at ports of entry and determine whether arms and explosives were imported into Paint Creek for improper use. The terms of the authorization are so broad that the committee will be able to inquire into anything and everything which figured in the troubles between the miners and the operators. The investigation will be the second in the history of the nation, so far as senators have shown in debate, to be made of the acts of a state by a legislative branch of the federal government. The strike in the Coeur d'Alene mining region in Idaho was investigated by a house committee in 1900.

ALL MATHEMATICIANS ARE PROVEN WRONG BY 16-YEAR-OLD PHILADELPHIA STUDENT

Philadelphia, June 1.—What is declared by prominent authorities on higher mathematics to be the greatest invention of its kind is being demonstrated by its inventor, Sydney A. Grose, a 16-year-old student of the Central High school of this city. The device is an angle sector which mathematicians who have examined the instrument say is capable of dividing an angle not a right angle and which they say has proved erroneous the revailing theory since Euclid's time, that there was no practical method of trisecting such angles.

Among the mathematicians who have used the boy's sector and found it is true are Professor M. J. Babb, University of Pennsylvania; Professor Samuel N. Brecht, of the Scientific department of the Central High school, Philadelphia; Professor David Eugene Smith, author of mathematical textbooks, and professor of higher mathematics at Columbia university, and Professor Jonathan S. Rorer, William Pennsylvania High school of this city.

Gross' device was made in ten days after the boy began the study of the problem. It is made of cardboard, shaped like an eight-pointed star, and is divided into four large compartments along two axis. Each compartment is divided into eight subdivisions and the points joined together so that a complete series of rectangles is formed and which may be moved about by means of flexible hinges. To divide an angle, the device is placed over the angle and its hinges worked so that it forms the required section. It will make three groups of twin triangles which are equal, and every group of two angles is one-third of the entire angle.

Dr. Rorer, in commenting on the invention, said:

"Since 180 B. C. the only known method of trisecting an angle has been by higher curves, but this makes practical the trisection of an angle."

Other mathematicians have expressed similar views, and declare that it will be of inestimable value to architects and mechanical draftsmen, and in the mechanical arts, where it is often necessary to make such divisions for the construction of polygon figures.

A Highway to Ceylon.

(From The London World.)

There lies a roadway in an eastern isle,
A road as red as morning, unsurpassed;
It haunts the breathing seas for many a mile,
To turn at last.

A way 'twixt ranks of slender palm trees laid,
Interminable green, sun-painted, tall,
With drooped green fingers, neither swift nor fair,
Nor faint nor frail.

A road aglow with brilliant butterflies,
Winged sunbeams slipping by of dusk and gold,
The tree bird tapping in his crimson guise,
Bright-eyed and bold.

The halcyon with blue lightning in his flight,
Snow-breasted, clothed in jewels of the sun;
The highway is their playground until night,
When play is done.

Beyond the hills still the kindly night
Lifts from the languid day her tolling knell;
Into the western sun's departing light
Dips the red road.

Interest on Deposits.

(Wall Street.)

In notifying the United States treasury that it declines to carry government deposits without interest, the Chemical National bank has set a good example. The requirement by the treasury of interest on these particular deposits is not in itself so objectionable, but the Chemical National bank has steadily refused to pay interest on the reserve deposits of country banks. The payment of interest on reserve money is unsound in theory and dangerous in practice. If the other national banks of New York would get together and decline to bid against each other for such deposits except by excellence of service, it would be a long step forward toward averting some of the worst evils of periods of tight money and panic.

Payment of interest on reserve deposits is one of the greatest obstacles to sane currency legislation in relation to the monetary system. Such deposits, so far as they fall within the amounts required by law to be kept as reserves, should be in the custody of the central banking mechanism, and in no circumstances should they draw interest. At the present time, however, the amounts due to national banks from approved reserve agents amount to about $800,000,000, and if they are drawing interest at 2 per cent, the banks are paying each other more than $15,000,000 for the dangerous privilege of carrying money which is likely to be withdrawn and lent at higher rates when it is needed most at the financial centers. In many respects, it amounts to nothing more than a swapping of jack-knives between the banks, without even temporary benefit to the banking system. Yet a plan which proposed to wipe this practice off the slate would probably have the country banks in arms against it.

Four Killed by Gas.

Chicago, June 1.—Four men were killed today by gas in a new well at Chicago Heights, a suburb, 25 miles south of here. Three of them sacrificed their lives in trying to rescue the first one. Their bodies were recovered. All of the men were employed in the factories of the National Brick company.

Man's Declaration.

(From Life.)

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one man to dissolve the domestic bands which have connected him with a woman, and to assume among his peers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle him, a decent respect for the opinions of mankind requires that he should declare the causes which impel him to the separation.

All husbands were created equal; their inequity comes from the difference in the respective abilities of their wives. A just regard, therefore, for the fellow of mankind requires that they should be permitted to love something. And if it is no longer interesting and expedient for them to love their wives, then we hold that they are entitled to break lose in manner hereinafter to be determined.

All those in favor please say aye, contrary, no. The ayes have it, and we will now proceed to the business in hand.

Newspaper Ads Go Where Your Salesmen Cannot Go.

Did that ever occur to you, Mr. Merchant and Mr. Manufacturer?

Your salesmen may be very bright and ambitious men, extremely persuasive; but there are many places they CANNOT enter.

Not so with the newspaper.

It isn't denied entrance; it comes right along and is a welcome caller. It is hailed in countless homes, morning, evening and Sunday.

An ideal paper like THE CONSTITUTION wins its way at once into the home—into the privacy of the household, the business office, the banking house—everywhere.

The newspaper is not one messenger carrying your message into one home at a time, but thousands of messengers carrying your message into thousands of homes at one time.

The newspaper never wearies; it carries your advertising messages day after day, rain or shine, cold or hot. It never fails.

It is the very symbol of faithful service.

Do you then wonder at its effectiveness?
